East coast oil estimates slightly off . . . about 80%

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Geological Survey now estimates the Atlantic coast of the United States may hold barely a year's supply of oil instead of the three-to seven-year's supply forecast earlier.

In a new study of oil and gas still to be discovered in the United States, the Geological Survey sharply lowered all of the estimates it had issued just over one year ago, bringing them closer in line with oil industry estimates.

In March 1974, the Geological Survey estimated anywhere from 200 billion to 400 billion barrels of oil and natural gas liquids remained to be discovered in the United States — a fresh supply that could last anywhere from 66 to 132 years at the nation's 1974 domestic production rate of 3.04 billion barrels a year.

Now, the agency estimates total undiscovered oil and natural gas liquids of only 50 billion to 127 billion barrels, a supply good for 16 to 42 years at 1974 production levels, when the United States was importing more than one-third of its oil.

The supply would run out even sooner if the nation increased domestic production to reduce imports.

The 1974 estimates of undiscovered petroleum liquids in all offshore areas range from 65 billion to 130 billion barrels, but the new study drops the estimate to between 10 billion and 49 billion barrels.

The Atlantic offshore area alone, not yet explored, was estimated in 1974 to hold 10 billion to 20 billion barrels, equivalent to about three to seven years of total domestic production.

Now, the agency places potential Atlantic oil at only two to four billion barrels, an 80 per cent reduction, and equivalent to eight to 16 months of total U.S. production.

Natural gas estimates also took a beating in the new report.

In 1974, the survey estimated total undiscovered gas supplies ranging from 1,000 trillion to 2,000 trillion cubic feet, enough to sustain current production levels for another 47 to 94 years.

Now, that estimate has dropped to 322 trillion to 655 trillion cubic feet, a 15-to 31-year supply.

State housing bill given Senate okay

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's sagging housing industry would get a multi-million-dollar shot in the arm under legislation that has reached the governor's desk.

The special session bill zipped through the Senate on a 33-6 vote Thursday after supporters said it could "revitalize the whole building economy" and provide better housing for the poor.

"I think it's a great bill," said Sen. George Zenovich, the Fresno Democrat who carried the measure on the Senate floor.

The bill is a move to involve business and government "in a very critical section of the economy. We all know there is a housing shortage and there are many people unemployed," Zenovich said.

Critics countered the bill could hurt existing state programs, move government into an area where it has "no business" being, and do little to help the housing problem.

"What this legislation is doing is to put this state into an entirely new kind of program — one which we do not know one thing about how to administrate," said Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach.

Assemblyman Peter Chacon, D-San Diego, introduced the bill that has already cleared the Assembly.

It would create a state housing finance agency with power to make low-interest loans on housing for low and middle-income Californians.

It would authorize the agency to sell up to $450 million in state revenue bonds and federally backed bonds to finance loans.

It also would put a $500 million general obligation bond issue on the ballot next year to provide loan funds.

Rail strike postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The railway clerks union agreed early today to postpone its threatened nationwide strike until July 21, after all-night negotations failed to settle a contract dispute.

The union earlier had threatened to walk out at 12:01 a.m. EDT Monday.

W.J. Usery Jr., the Ford administration's top labor troubleshooter, who announced the postponement at dawn, said the union acted after he requested a 30-day delay.

No further talks were scheduled following the all-night session among Usery, the union leaders and representatives of the rail industry.

Crime boss Giancana shot dead

OAK PARK, Ill. (AP) — Sam Giancana, a reputed leader in the Chicago crime syndicate who was recently linked to alleged CIA plots to kill Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, was found shot to death in his home Thursday night, police said.

Giancana, 65, had been shot once in the right corner of the mouth and five times in the neck, according to Oak Park Police Chief Wilbur Reichert.

No weapon was recovered, but six .22-caliber shell casings were found on the floor, Reichert said.

"It seems like a professional hit, but the small caliber of the gun bothers us," he said. Gangland slayings often are committed with shotguns or largecaliber weapons.

About $1,400 in cash was found on the body, Reichert said, leading authorities to discount robbery as a motive for the shooting.

Caretaker Joseph DiPersio, 82, discovered the body lying face up on the kitchen floor in the basement of Giancana's home in this western Chicago suburb, Reichert said.

DiPersio and his wife had been watching television in a second floor room of the house, but they said they heard no gunshots, possibly because their air conditioner was running, the police chief said.

DiPersio said he saw Giancana alive at 10:30 p.m., but the next time he checked the reputed mobster was dead. Police received the homicide call at 11:51 p.m.

Giancana was wearing a sport shirt, slacks and a pair of house slippers when his body was found.

The FBI joined local police in investigating the shooting.

Giancana, a dapper, outgoing figure in earlier years with a bent for silk suits and night clubs, was arrested in connection with a number of gangland killings in the late 1950s.

Prices rise fractionally during May

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices increased fourtenths of a per cent in May, the government reported today, continuing a moderating trend in the nation's inflation.

April's increase had been six tenths of a per cent. For the year ending in May, the overall increase was 9.5 per cent, the first time in more than a year that the 12-month rate was under 10 per cent.

The Labor Department said its Consumer Price Index stood at 159.3 based on the 1967 average of 100, meaning that consumers were paying $159.30 for the same goods that cost $100 eight years ago.

The Labor Department said there were higher prices during May for gasoline, used cars and meat. The price of beef rose 7.6 per cent, more than half the 11 per cent price decrease of the previous six months.

There were lower prices in May for most other foods, new cars and mortgage interest rates. Prices of partially prepared foods declined for the first time in about three years.

The government also had encouraging news about pay, reporting that real spendable earnings of workers rose by 4.4 per cent in May, largely because of the government tax cuts which took effect on May 1.

The improvement in the inflation rate in May was evident throughout the Labor Department's price report.

The prices of nonfood commodities, such as furniture, appliances and new cars, increased only two tenths of one per cent, the smallest rise in this category since September of 1973.

The over-all increase in food prices was five-tenths of one per cent, up from four-tenths of one per cent in April. Except for meat, however, most other prices were down, including cereal and bakery products, dairy products, processed foods and vegetables and fats and oil products.

Prices for eggs and sugar fell sharply.

Police seek final huddle on pay issue

Pomona police leaders decided Thursday to seek one more meeting with city representatives in an effort to overcome the apparent stalemate over the 7½ per cent pay cut the officers say they have been asked to take for the coming fiscal year.

The decision was made Thursday at a meeting of board members of the Pomona Police Officers' Association. If no new meeting is agreed to, the officers are considering some type of "job action," such as a work slowdown, the so-called "blue flu" in which many policemen call in sick, or even a strike, a spokesman said.

A meeting of the general membership scheduled for late this afternoon could alter the board's decision, however.

Thursday's meeting, at the association headquarters, was attended by a representative of the Teamsters Union. The officers reportedly are considering union membership, if their bargaining with the city does not progress to their satisfaction.

Richard Shaurette, president of the association, said today that the least that policemen will settle for is parity with the city's firemen. The firemen have a three-year agreement in which they have received raises, he said. The agreement between the city and the policemen expires July 1.

Shaurette said that under the current wage offer. Pomona firemen would be making $290 a month more than policemen by April 1 — a situation he says the policemen are not prepared to accept.

City officials have denied that they made a demand that policemen take a pay cut for the coming year, but Shaurette maintains that was the only wage offer city representatives made at the one and only bargaining session held earlier this week.

A note of explanation . . .

On Saturday, June 14, 1975, the Progress Bulletin ran a full page advertisement on Flag Day, part of which was the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

The Pledge of Allegiance which appeared is the original version which was first published in the Sept. 8, 1892 issue of the "Youth's Companion," a weekly magazine then published in Boston.

Thirty years later "of America" was added and then an Act of Congress in 1954 included the words "under God."

In producing this Flag Day page, along with Bicentennial information, we wanted to be as historically authentic as possible. Unfortunately, we did not identify this version of the Pledge of Allegiance and can now see that this was a mistake. Please accept our apologies.

CIM inmate slain in gang attack

A 29-year-old California Institution for Men inmate, serving time for battery on a police officer, died Thursday morning of multiple stab wounds after being attacked by other inmates.

Inmate Jess Joe Valezuela, returned to prison June 11 on a parole vilation, died less than 20 minutes after he was attacked during an exercise period.

Correctional officers reported that at 10:25 a.m. a fight broke out among inmates on the first tier of Palm Hall. The officers rushed into the hall and found Valenzuela mortally wounded.

Palm Hall is located in the maximum security processing center of the Chino prison facility.

Prison officials said Valenzuela was stabbed 14 times in the back with one or more ice pick type prison knives or "shanks."

Chino police and prison investigators said this morning three inamates who were on the first tier during the fight are being questioned about the attack on Valenzuela. Prison officials said they have a policy not to release the names of suspects in prison crimes until they are formally charged by the District Attorney's Office or indicted by a grand jury.

Marvin Ryer, assistance to the superintendent of CIM, said this morning the motive for the attack on Valenzuela was unknown. "We believe the attack stemmed from a personal or private feud between inmamtes." He did not rule out the possibility that prison gang rivalry was involved.

"We do know that all the inmates involved were Mexican-Americans, leading us to believe it was a personal feud. It did not affect the other inmates," he said.

Ryer said once the correctional officers were alerted to the fight, the inmates quickly disbanded. No weapon or weapons used in the attack on Valenzuela were recovered. Ryer said that the attack was planned, and the attackers may have either thrown the knife to other inamtes, who disposed of it, or hid the weapons involved. A search of the tiers continues today.

The three inmates being questioned were being kept in their cells with all privileges suspended.

Valenzuela, according to Ryer, was first committed to prison from Ventura County in 1966. Conviction of battery on police officer carries a sentence of six months to 10 years in state prison. Valenzuela had been paroled in 1971 and in 1973, but both times returned to prison on parole violations. The inmate had only six-months left on his maximum sentence, before he would have been released, Ryer said.

2 suspects held in 'rapist' case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two men were booked today for investigation in a series of rapes of elderly women in the West Side area which resulted in the deaths of eight of the victims.

A police spokesman said the two men bore "a certain physical evidence " to the so-called "West Side Rapist," blamed for at least 27 attacks on elderly women in the Wilshire area going back to May 4 of last year.

The two men were identified as Vincent M. Harris, 18, and Turrell Watts, 21, both of Los Angeles.

San Fernando Valley pullout?

Secession from L.A. receiving serious thought

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A plan which could drastically change the shape and size of Los Angeles is being studied by a local businessmen's group, and several lawmakers are tuning in to the idea.

The plan would have the sprawling San Fernando Valley secede from the nation's second largest city.

It is a proposal which could remove one third of the city's population — about one million voters from the rolls and create a new government for the flock of tiny bedroom communities now known as "The Valley."

Mayor Tom Bradley's office says the secession is a near impossibility. And some lawmakers say that the motivation for secession — to save taxpayers money — could backfire when costs of forming a new government are added to assessments.

State Sen. Alan Robbins, D-Van Nuys, who has won support for a study of the secession idea, says it is necessary to establish data on whether "The valley is being seriously shortchanged."

Some Valley businessmen suspect that the taxes collected in such Valley communities as Sherman Oaks, Van Nuys, Encino or Studio City may be supporting other areas of Los Angeles.

The conglomeration of small towns governed by the city led to the famed description of Los Angeles as "twelve suburbs in search of a city."

Assemblyman Bob Cline, R-Northridge, who is working with Robbins and a group of Valley businessmen in promoting the study of secession, says "I don't think we've reached a decision as to the route we ought to go yet.

"We've got to have the basic (statistical) information," he says. "If it turns out that taxes would be higher (in an independent valley) then obviously I would not support it. But if we can show that we can have a more efficient local government, then I believe we ought to proceed."

Robbins has introduced legislation in Sacramento which would create a separate statistical area for the San Fernando Valley, providing more the detailed statistics needed to decide whether secession would work or not. The bill is still pending.

Aides to the mayor note that the road to secession is prohibitively complicated. Steps in the procedure would include a referendum, circulation of petitions which would need at least 203,133 signatures to get the measure on the ballot, approval by the county's Local Agency Formation Commission, a ballot vote and finally efforts to fairly redistribute Los Angeles' assets and debts.

"We are aware at this point only of the problems it would create," says Deputy Mayor Maury Winer, "and we suspect that any new diversion of government would cost more money rather than less money, and perhaps for all sides.

"This seems to us to be a diversion, a distraction from the real issues," he says, suggesting development of more regional authorities rather than splitting up the city.

Area solons pushing for Poly vet school

A program to establish a school of veterinary medicine at Cal Poly Pomona is being initiated by area legislators.

State Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-32nd Dist., presented a resolution this week to the Senate asking the Post Secondary Education Commission to conduct an independent study on the feasibility of the proposal.

He will be joined in support in the Assembly by Assemblymen Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., and William Lancaster, R-62nd Dist.

Ayala said the resolution will be routed to the Senate Rules Committee and should reach the full Senate after the July recess.

In his resolution, the senator notes the state has been unable to educate enough veterinarians to fulfill the needs in caring for the food animal industry and companion animals.

"A large number of well qualified California university and college students aren't able to pursue an academic degree program in veterinary medicine due to the insufficient capacity in the state's one veterinary school at UC Davis.

Ayala said schools of veterinary medicine in other states are no longer admitting California students, and the need for licensed, practicing veterinarians will continue to increase.

Since half of California's population and a substantial portion of food and companion animals are in Southern California, the senator said an established need exists here for a clinical and research referral service and the continuing education requirements for practicing veterinarians.

In a recent meeting with Cal Poly officials, Ayala was informed that Cal Poly had sufficient facilities to begin a graduate veterinary school program.

Cal Poly, however, must work to change the state's master plan for degrees so the local university can grant doctorate degrees, he added. "This would involve the state Board of Regents declaring this to be a full-fledged university."

Ayala said the education commission will be asked to determine if Cal Poly is ideally situated for this type of school.

Assembly okays malpractice proposal denounced by foes

L.A. County doctor strike is threatened

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A malpractice bill criticized alternately by defenders of doctors, lawyers and insurance companies has won state Assembly approval but faces an uncertain future.

Assemblyman Barry Keene said after Thursday's 65-8 vote that he expected stiff opposition and extensive amendment attempts in the Senate.

"We have a very precarious balance on an issue that gave every indication of not being able to accommodate a consensus," the Eureka Democrat said in an interview.

The president of the Los Angeles County Medical Association said Thursday that the county's 10,000 doctors would go on strike if the bill passed both houses in its present form.

Keene called the statement "a very bad approach" and noted that the California Medical Association is supporting the bill.

In another development, the Senate rejected a bill that would have pulled most malpractice cases out of the courts, to be heard by a 24-member panel.

The bill by Sen. Dennis Carpenter, R-Newport Beach, failed on a 16-20 vote, though the Senate agreed to reconsider it another time.

Opponents said the measure would strengthen doctors at the expense of consumer rights.

In two hours of Assembly debate on the Keene bill, one speaker after another recited objections but said he would vote for the bill to keep it alive.

One aye vote came from Assemblyman John Collier, R-Monrovia, despite his warning that the bill promoted socialism in the legal, medical and insurance professions.

One unreserved supporter, Assemblyman John Miller, D-Oakland, turned the criticisms into a virtue.

"It's usually a good sign of food legislation when you don't have all the special interests behind it," Miller said. "Nobody is for this so it's probably a damn good piece of legislation."

Keene said he could not guarantee that the bill would lower the soaring malpractice insurance rates that have prompted statewide doctors' walkouts.

"I cannot represent to you that AB 1 will reduce malpractice rates tomorrow or next month or in a year or at all," he said. "But I can and I do represent to you that each of the bill's component parts will have some tendency to contain costs."

Major provisions include limits on attorneys' contingency fees, closer state scrutiny of malpractice insurance rates, a tighter statute of limitations, and a non-doctor majority on the state panel that disciplines doctors.

The Assembly's only physician, Robert McLennan, R-Downey, voted for the bill but said it was "futile" unless rates were forced down. He also said doctors were being unfairly castigated.

Sand storm damage hits $1 million

INDIO (AP) — California's worst desert sand storm in decades swirled its way to a damage total of $1 million or more as it sandblasted vehicles, ruined crops and played havoc with utilities and homes.

Preliminary estimates made Thursday included $185,000 damage to the $5.5 million Palo Verde wheat crop in Riverside County, $175,000 to the TriPalm Estates mobile-home park in Thousand Palms and at least $100,000 to poles, lines and other facilities of Southern California Edison.

In addition, Sand blown by winds up to 90 miles an hour blasted off the paint and pitted the windshields and chromework of thousands of cars and trucks as the fierce storm raged Tuesday and Wednesday.

Auto repair shops throughout the Coachella Valley reported brisk business replacing windshields and cleaning carburetors.

Sam Babal, manager of the Tri-Palm Estates, said windwhipped sand broke the windows and peeled off the roofs of 62 of the 780 mobile homes there.

Southern California Edison workers from as far as 70 miles away in Corona were brought in to raise fallen poles and restring lines.

The General Telephone Co. said 60 of its vehicles received windshield and paint damage— many while making repairs during the storm.

Road graders with large blades had to push the sand aside like snow drifts.

Man barred from L.V. fireman job files suit

Willard M. Zollinger has filed a civil suit in Pomona Superior Court — the latest step in his long battle to become a La Verne city fireman.

Zollinger's application for the job was rejected recently because of a city regulation which bars having two members of the same family employed by the city. It was decided that he is related to La Verne fireman Don Johnson.

But Zollinger maintains that they are not blood relatives and the regulation should not apply to him. The connection between the men is that they both are married to daughters of La Verne Mayor Mike M. Morales.

In his fight to become eligible for the job, Zollinger has appeared before the City Council and has obtained a petition in his favor bearing 71 signatures. But the council remained adamant.

His latest step was the law suit which resulted in a writ of mandate ordering the city to permit Zollinger to take the written test earlier this week and either accept his application or convince the court that the city law was correctly applied to him.

A hearing on the writ is scheduled for June 27 before Judge Paul Egly.

Mayor Morales has disqualified himself from the problem, being a father-in-law to both men. Morales is not considered a full-time, permanent city employe, however, according to City Atty. Wynne Furth.

Brown aide urges state subsidize nonprofit business to create jobs

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s employment chief has suggested that the state subsidize non-profit business to create jobs and make private enterprise "shape up"

The concepts are in a 15-page proposal prepared by James Lorenz that leaked out of the Brown administration Thursday.

Brown told a news conference late Thursday he would read the report before passing judgment.

Brown indicated some of the job proposals — aimed at developing 100,000 part-time and 900,000 half-time jobs—had merit. But he called them ideas with no means of financing.

The first-term Democratic governor called the news conference following one by Mario Obledo, Brown's health and welfare secretary and Lorenz' boss.

Copies of the proposal were given to newsmen, upon request, after the Oakland Tribune obtained a copy and published a story.

Lorenz, Brown's Employment Development Department director, was reported by his office to be out of town and unavailable until Monday.

Brown agreed with Lorenz that private enterprise has not been successful in helping solve unemployment problems.

But Brown's calls for help from private business contrasted with Lorenz' written comments:

"The job program starts because of failures of the old for-profit economic order," Lorenz' report said.

The state must learn "to be less dependent on high-priced, unresponsive, mammoth institutions which rule more than serve us."

Lorenz said community-oriented "co-ops" producing any numer of "tangible products" could be set up by loans from a state bank to compete with private enterprise. He added:

Lorene called for Brown to back legislation requiring banks, savings and loan associations and insurance companies to report how they are investing money.

"The mere asking of the question will encourage California businesses to invest more money in California," he said.

Slain woman's baby in boyfriend's custody

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A 41-year-old Hollywood man has gained custody of a baby cut from the womb of its murdered mother in a bizarre baby-stealing case.

"I can do everything for a baby but have them," William Hooks said Thursday when told he could temporarily care for the five-week-old son of his dead girlfriend, Kathryn Viramontes.

"It's my child and I can take care of him better than any foster parent," he said.

The decision was handed down by Senior Juvenile Court Referee Julius Libow, who ruled that Hooks could care for the child for the next six months and be allowed to keep him if he proves to be a fit father.

County welfare officials testified that Hooks is believed to be the child's natural father, and has the desire and financial means to care for the baby.

Hooks told newsmen that he intends to name the child William Hooks III, to comply with the wishes of Miss Viramontes. Hooks said he had lived with her for six months last year and part of this year.

"I like to be loose," he said. "But I came back to Kathy and we went out together all the time."

She was found stabbed to death May 16 after undergoing what investigators said was a makeshift caesarian secton delivery in her apartment.

Norma Jean Armistead, a registered nurse, was booked for investigation of murder in her death and was named by police as the one who performed the operation.

She also is charged with taking the new-born daughter of another couple from the hospital where she worked, telling the mother the child had died at birth. The eight-month-old girl was returned to her parents, William and Mary Childs, on June 4.

The nurse faces arraignment in suburban Van Nuys on June 27.

800-plus to get degrees in Chaffey College rite

More than 800 candidates for the associate degree will participate in commencement ceremonies at Chaffey College, Alta Loma, on Sunday.

The baccalaureate ceremonies will be at 4 p.m. in the Little Theater and commencement will be at 6 p.m. in the Outdoor Theater.

T. Stanley Warburton, chief administrative officer at the college, will be the commencement speaker. His topic will be "Into the Western Sun."

Warburton will retire June 30 after a five-year tenure as superintendent-president of the district college and a 41-year career in public education.

The chairman of the Chaffey College board of trustees, Lester Stroh, will confer on Warburton the status of president emeritus. Stroh will also conduct investiture rites for Warburton's successor, Kenneth C. Hinrichsen. Hinrichsen, currently associate superintendent, assumes his new post on July 1.

The student speaker will be class valedictorian Mrs. Joan Brown of Montclair.

Sophomore class president Phyllis Embrey of Cucamonga will present the graduating class and its gift to the school.

Music will be provided by the Chaffey College Jazz Ensemble and Concert Ensemble Singers, directed by Jack Mason. Their selection will be "Freddie's Walk-In."

Arthur E. Flum, Chaffey College professor emeritus, will be the baccalaureate speaker. His topic will be "Faith in the Future."

The student speaker will be Hubert H. Smith, Upland, recipient of the Crombie Allen Speech Award.

The Chaffey Concert Choir will sing at the baccalaureate service.

Shipwreck rubber raft odyssey

Cannibalism thoughts in 13-day ordeal

GARY GILLESPIE

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Two men who spent 13 days drifting across the Gulf of Mexico in an eight-foot rubber raft say they drank their own urine to stay alive. One even offered to kill himself so his comrade could have something to eat.

Richard Lebo, 36, and Gary Gillespie, 21, were exhausted but in good condition today after being rescued Thursday by a Coast Guard helicopter. They were first spotted 50 miles south of Galveston by a private helicopter which did not have enough fuel to stop.

The two had been drifting in the raft since their 48-foot cabin cruiser, Caroline, sank off the Yucatan coast on June 6 while enroute from Key West, Fla., to the Central American country of Belize.

Still missing was Andy Carmone, who Lebo said signed on as a crewman just before they left. A search began for the man, who was believed to be in a raft.

Lebo said Gillespie saved his life by repeatedly talking him out of committing suicide. But Lebo said from his hospital bed that if they had not been rescued Thursday he would have given up completely.

"I just didn't want to go through another night of that," said Lebo, who added he became increasingly delirious and even tried to strangle Gillespie.

"I think it was (Wednesday) morning I wanted to slash my wrists and get it over with," said Lebo, who lost 27 pounds in the ordeal. "But it was cloudy and cold. Man, I couldn't even die in peace."

Gillespie recalled Lebo offered to kill himself so his comrade could have something to eat.

"I told him I ain't no cannibal so just get your mind off that," Gillespie said.

They said the Caroline began taking water after it reached the Yucatan coast. Bilge pumps failed to keep up with leaks and they had to abandon ship too fast to stock water or other supplies.

With no water and only a dozen cans of food and milk, Gillespie said they survived by drinking urine.

They said on the second day, a Mexican fishing boat passed within 100 yards of their raft, but did not stop.

"We were really mad, but we figured, what the hell, it's early," Lebo recalled. "Somebody will find us soon."

But the days passed, more ships slipped by on the horizon, and their hopes sank.

New Orleans Coast Guard Lt. David Jacobsen said the craft had not been reported missing. In Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Gillespie's wife, Vicky, said her husband had not told her when to expect him back.

The two were snatched from six-foot waves by a basket lowered from a helicopter by pilot Lt. Wayne Carter and crewman Joel Castro.

"They reached out and were all smiles when they came aboard," Carter said. "They could not believe they had drifted all the way across the Gulf."

Carter said the two were suffering from exposure and dehydration after the 500-mile journey but "they were in very good shape for people who had been adrift for 13 days."

Social Security

Men win equal rights with gals

NEW YORK (AP) — Widowers have the right to the same Social Security benefits as widows, a three-judge federal panel has ruled.

The decision Thursday made as many as 400,000 surviving widowers in the nation eligible for benefits for the first time. The cost to the government for the first year could be as high as $333 million, one judge estimated.

The judges threw out a previous requirement that in order to receive survivor benefits, the widower must have been receiving at least half of his support from his wife at the time of her death.

"...there is not the slightest scintilla of support for the proposition that working women are less concerned about their spouses welfare in old age than are men," the judges ruled.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Pamela McGuire said the decision would be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The case was brought by Leon Goldfarb, 71, of Queens, who retired in July 1971 as managing analyst for the U.S. Signal Corps. As a federal employe, he paid no Social Security taxes.

'Closing costs' must be explained

Home buyers get bill of rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning today, home buyers will be entitled to advance notice and an explanation of the murky "closing costs" which can add thousands of dollars to the price of purchasing a home.

In Los Angeles County, the costs ranged from $200 to nearly $1,000, in Washington, D.C., the range was $487 to $1,030, and in Cook County, Ill., $102 to $723.

But paring those costs will still be up to the buyer.

Red tape tortures maimed deer

Wardens goof again

MILFORD, N.Y. (AP) — New state regulations have been blamed for a 12-hour delay in putting a young deer out of its misery after all four of its legs were severed by a hay mower.

State officials issued new policies last week after two deer, kept by farm families as pets after being nursed back to health, died after being taken away by authorities.

The new policy directed conservation officers to obtain permission from higher ups before killing wild animals in the possession of private citizens.

The delay came when top officials were unavailable.

John Liner, a farmer in this town north of Oneonta, said his son, Tom, was mowing hay Wednesday evening when the machine struck the young deer, cleanly severing all four legs below the knee.

Liner said his wife called authorities who contacted William Gregory at the Department of Environmental Conservation office in Stamford.

Gregory said nothing could be done until the office of Commissioner Ogden R. Reid was contacted the following morning.

Conservation officer Arthur Andrews went to the Liner farm Thursday morning and found the fawn still alive and apparently in shock. Andrews quickly obtained permission and killed the animal.

Luiner, angry at the delay, said, "We want some laws changed here. This is cruelty to animals. Let's get a little authority out of the big shots in Albany — they don't know anything."

Reid's office issued another policy statement Thursday, this one saying officers on the scene may make judgments in cases where animals are distressed and in pain.

Victoria wants mom in U. S.

LANTANA, Fla. (AP) — Russian actress Victoria Fyodorova says she would like to bring her mother from Moscow to America "as a guest" to meet her new American husband.

"It is unhappy that my mother and father live in different countries," she said Thursday at her first news conference since her marriage earlier this month to airline pilot FredPouy of Stamford, Conn.

Miss Fyodorova said she has spoken to her mother by telephone and her mother's only concern was the couple's happiness.

In April, Miss Fyodorova was herself a guest when she came to America to visit the father she had never seen — retired Adm. Jackson R. Tate of Orange Park, Fla.

Briefs

. . . India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today was granted a special Supreme Court hearing in her first legal move to keep her job following conviction for political corruption. She then warned the country there might be an attempt on her life.

. . . Uganda

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A British envoy carrying a clemency plea from Queen Elizabeth II flew into Uganda today in a last-ditch effort to save the life of a Briton condemned to death by firing squad. Another condemned Briton was acquitted Thursday and Ugandan President Idi Amin said it showed that justice prevails in his country.

In London, the Foreign Office expressed its deep concern over Amin's stated intention of executing retired British lecturer Denis Hills, 61, by Monday unless Foreign Secretary James Callaghan flies out to see him first.

Callaghan said earlier this week he would not negotiate with Amin "under duress."

. . . energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House-passed energy bill, minus any gasoline tax hike, is awaiting action in the Senate where sources estimate it could be October before Congress sends a final version to President Ford.

The bill's chief author, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, says he hopes Ford "will show his desire to shape, rather than block, a more comprehensive program" in the Senate.

The House previously killed the committee's proposed gasoline tax increase of up to 23 cents a gallon and the panel's recommended tax on gasuzzling new cars. The final bill was described by Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., as "a disaster — it is an ounce of conservation and a gallon of loopholes."

. . . spy hunt

NEW YORK (AP) — A Puerto Rican-born master spy and explosives expert is being sought in connection with the bombing of Fraunce's Tavern n the financial district here and two similar explosions in Chicago, the FBI says.

The Cuban-trained spy, Filiberto Ojeda Rios, 42, was described as a leader and founder of FALN, the Puerto Rican revolutionary group that has claimed responsibilitv for the explosions in both cities.

The bombs used at the historic tavern in January and Chicago last Saturday were of the same type and "very professional," authorities said Thursday. The tavern explosion killed four persons and injured 41. Four persons were hurt in the Chicago blasts.

. . . layoffs

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — Layoffs in the auto industry will drop to 15-5,382 next week, the lowest level so far this year, as all assembly plants except one are scheduled to operate.

Ford Motor Co.plans to resume production Monday at its Los Angeles car plant, sending 3,450 workers back to the job after a one-week furlough.

. . . kidnap

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Police and FBI agents searched today for two men who bluffed their way into the home of a bank president, abducted his wife at gunpoint and demanded $300,000 for her safe return.

The 68-year-old hostage, Mrs. George J. Helein, was abandoned unharmed by her abductors after they apparently thought she was ill, authorities said. No ransom was paid.

Indo reds battling themselves

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence sources believe the Vietnamese Communists have used captured U.S.-built bombers against Cambodian forces in a growing territorial quarrel between the two recent allies.

Intelligence reports indicate 10 light bombers apparently struck Cambodian forces last week during battles for several small disputed islands in the Gulf of Thailand.

Pentagon officials think the A37 bombers may have been flown by U.S.-trained pilots who served with the South Vietnamese air force until North Vietnam won final victory nearly two months ago.

The North Vietnamese are known to have captured many planes among an estimated $2 billion worth of serviceable U.S.-provided military equipment when they overran South Vietnamese bases in the final stages of the war.

Vietnamese troops which reportedly seized the islands also were said to have been supported by naval gunfire, possibly from vessels once supplied to South Vietnam by the United States.

U.S. intelligence reports indicate the dispute between the neighboring Communist regimes in Indochina has widened into a series of armed clashes along their common border. One report speaks of a recent increase in the frequency and intensity of the skirmishing.

Sources say a Cambodian mission flew from Phnom Penh to Hanoi on June 11 to try and resolve the territorial dispute.

Cambodia's Communist-led peasant army, good enough to defeat troops of the U.S.-backed Lon Nol government, would stand little chance against the heavily armed, highly disciplined North Vietnamese army, in the opinion of U.S. analysts.

Bakers not loafing during 10-cent bread war

Today's brighter side

LYNNWOOD, Wash. (AP) — The lure of a 10-cent loaf of bread turned some stores into consumer battlefields as hundreds of shoppers stormed the bakery aisles in this city's week-long bread war.

It all began Monday when one large store cut the price for three loaves from 99 cents to 96 cents.

A half-dozen stores were soon involved in price-slashing. Prices dropped almost hourly Tuesday, and by Wednesday morning bread sold for 10 cents a loaf. It held at a dime throughout Thursday.

Many stores could not stack bread on the shelf as fast as customers snatched it up, and managers said they were losing a lot of dough.

One store which ran out of bread gave customers who purchased $10 worth of groceries 20 cents to buy bread at other stores.

"It's ridiculous; nobody gains anything and we're all losing our shirts," said one store manager.

Jim Spaulding, owner of the Lynnwood U-Mark-It store, said that by noon Thursday he was running $6,000 in the red on bread.

The war was also hell for the young doughboys and girls pressed into service by shrewd parents trying to circumvent two-loaf limits.

Others beat the system by repeatedly going through the lines.

"There was one couple I finally told couldn't have any more. I know they went through 10 times before I told them," said Tony Wilde, assistant store manager at Farmer's Market.

For stores with bakers on the premises, there was no loafing around. Sid Pollestad of Albertson's said his bakery was running around the clock to keep up with demand.

One store manager locked himself in his office when approached by a reporter and peered nervously out at the bread lines while chain-smoking cigarettes.

"I just do what they say, I just do what I'm told. I can't tell you anything," he said, closing the door.

LYNWOOD'S BREAD WAR STAMPEDE

Fiddlin' 'round

WEISER, Idaho (AP) — A violin and a fiddle are the same stringed instrument. But don't call a competitor at the National Oldtime Fiddlers Festival a "violinist."

That's a fighting word to most of the 278 contestants and 2,500 fans who flocked to this town on the Oregon-Idaho border to stomp and sway to the twang of bluegrass, country and Western music this week.

"A fiddler gets his music sitting on an old log back of the barn. A violinist gets his from a sheet of music," said Fannie Chandler, a long-time pianist for the festival.

Mannie Shaw of Corral, Idaho, a veteran fidder, said the differene between a fiddle and a violin "is the same as the difference between your car and your automobile. There isn't any.

"But there's a difference in the music. You can't explain it. You feel it. I'm a fiddler. Rubinoff is a violinist."

Alvin Sanderson of Seattle, Wash., a senior champion who missed the Oldtime Fiddlers Contest this year, once described the difference this way: "You carry a violin in a fancy case. You carry a fiddle in a gunny sack."

And even though the distinction is not precise, judges can disqualify an entrant if they believe his music sounds more like it comes from a violin than a fiddle.

Veteran fiddlers feel their lilting, swinging hoedowns and waltzes are a unique style of music played mostly "by ear." Many a fiddler's tune has died with him. But others live on because a youngster picked it up.

"The kids are catching on quickly," said Shaw. "I'm really proud. Those little kids, 10 or 12 years old, can outfiddle me any day."

The competition has attracted fiddlers from throughout the nation, ranging in age from 7 to 80 and over. The last of the champions in five divisions will be named Saturday night.

Weiser, population 4,108, goes fiddle crazy every year about this time and it's difficult to find a place far from the sound of impromptu jam sessions. The contest is held at the local high school, but for several blocks around fans cluster around their favorite fiddlers, who play for hours at a time to the rapt audiences.

Draw one ethic

APPLETON, Wis. (AP) — A code of ethics for bartenders?

That's what is taught at Lawrence University in the bartending course taught by university placement director Harry Kisker. It deals not only in how to mix drinks and draw beer, but also how to adapt to the surroundings of the establishment.

The first rule of thumb for bartending is "hear everything and tell nothing," said Kisker.

"One of the worst things to ruin the credibility of a bartender is to start blabbing. What's said in a bar is almost like a confessional."

Another key to successful bartending is the ability to participate in up to 100 conversations at once, says Kisker.

"You're going to be interrupted to make drinks and things like that as you move around behind the bar, but you've got to be able to pick it up right where you left it," he said. "Everyone wants to feel that the bartender is interested in what they're saying.

"We also go a little bit into how to gracefully cut somebody off. The main thing is to leave your own psychological baggage at the door. Whatever is irritating you that day, leave it at home."

Students also learn how to spot regulars quickly and set up their usual drinks for them as they walk in.

Kisker says blue collar drinkers are usually seeking an emotional outlet while white collar drinkers want entertainment and diversion.

"There's a lot of difference in a workingman's bar and a lounge or supper club," said Kisker, who has worked in all manner of watering spots and says he once considered becoming a clinical psychologist and setting up a tavern practice.

"In working class bar, you deal with a lot of job complaints, about what the foreman did wrong that day," he says. "Also, a lot of home problems. The bartender is there primarily to listen."

In a swanky lounge, on the other hand, businessmen and salesmen tend more to test their ideas and plans on the bartender.

Lifestyles change

Man 'awakes' after 8 years

SEYMOUR, Tex. (AP) — Gene Tipps woke up last month, yawned, looked around and discovered the hippie movement with its flower children was gone.

The Vietnam war was over.

His old girl friends had long since married and had children.

He was looking for flat-top haircuts and 25-cent gas.

"Last thing I remember is that we were all kids and single. I know I'm 28, but to me, I'm still 20," says Tipps who "awoke" after eight years of almost constant sleeping.

Tipps was critically injured in a one-car accident May 21, 1967. He was suffering from shock and acute swelling of the brain associated with trauma. Doctors held little hope of recovery.

He was comatose for three weeks following the accident but after he came out of the coma he suffered from complete amnesia.

Dr. C. M. Randal, who performed a routine gall bladder operation on Tipps May 16, said Tipps lapsed into a void folowing the accident and was unresponsive and uncooperative.

"All he wanted to do was sleep," says Randal — about 17 hours a day.

Tipps stayed in the hospital for two months following the car accident and was then sent home for treatment.

"We would get him up and feed him and no matter what we did, he would go lay down and go to sleep. He had no desire to do anything," says his mother, Mrs. O. E. Tipps.

But then last month while recuperating from the gall bladder surgery, Tipps brushed away a nurses' efforts to give him some medication and he snapped out of his eight-year daze.

"Mother, I only want to talk," he said.

Tipps thought he had been asleep two weeks. He doesn't remember when he used to sit in a chair, staring, or his parents' efforts in the past five years to exercise him on a rowing-bicycle machine to maintain muscle tone.

"There's no medical explanation," says Randal, who adds that the gall bladder operation had nothing to do with Tipps waking up.

Randal said he gets at least one inquiry a day from people who have friends or relatives in a conditon similar to the one Tipps was in, but he said he tells them there is nothing he can do.

"I wish I had a reason for the change ... but we don't," he said.

"I can hardly believe Gene is back. I still can't find the words to express the way I feel about the change," his mother said.

When he awoke, Tipps' only thought was to notify Cisco Junior College of his whereabouts so he could graduate as he had planned in May 1967. The former dean's list student saw his graduation certificate from Cisco Junior College recently.

Now he wants to complete his business administration education at West Texas State University. He plans to enter this fall. However, his education plans must wait a while because he has little muscular control of his left eye, which a Wichita Falls doctor will examine.

"I want to go ahead with my education in business administration. I'm going to have to get a job," says Tipps. "I think I'm ready to take on the responsibilites my parents have had these last eight years."

'LONG SLEEP' — Gene Tipps, victim of a one-car accident in 1967, has recently awakened after eight years of "sleep."

Increased benefits

215 senior officers to retire

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 200 generals and admirals are expected to retire before September in a major exodus of senior military officers.

The main reason for this unusually large surge of retirements is a technical quirk in the law which means they would lose substantial pension income if they remain on active duty beyond Sept. 1.

Pentagon officials say at least 215 generals and admirals have either put in for retirement or are expected to do so. They represent nearly one-fifth of the roughly 1,200 top officers in all the armed services.

By comparison, before a complex ruling by the comptroller general on the retirement law brought on the problem, only 93 generals and admirals and 938 colonels and Navy captains retired during all of 1973.

Among those ending military careers spanning more than 30 years are Gen. Robert E. Cushman Jr., the Marine Corps commandant; Gen. Earl E. Anderson, assistant commandant; Adm. Worth Bagley, vice chief of naval operations; Gen. John W. Vogt Jr., Air Force commander in Europe; and Army Gen. William B. Rosson, chief of the U.S. Southern Command in the Panama Canal Zone.

For the same reason, about 2,300 colonels and Navy captains, out of a total of about 14,900 in both groups, are hurrying to retire before September.

The generals and admirals stand to lose as much as $333 a month and colonels and Navy captains $76 a month in retirement pay for the rest of their lives if they stay in uniform.

Although these retirements would open wider promotion opportunities for other officers, Pentagon leaders are concerned about possible turbulence and other problems that might arise from a major turnover in command and staff posts.

The Defense Department has been urging Congress to change the law to cure the retired pay problem "now creating serious repercussions."

Posing as prostitute doesn't break law

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A group of women who pretended to be prostitutes on Sacramento street corner didn't brea k any law, says Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Patrick McCarthy.

"It's illegal to pose as a policeman, but not as a prostitute," McCarthy said Wednesday.

The women — five lawyers, two law students and a legal secretary — were all members of a group called "Women's Advocates."

They said they posed as prostitutes on a street corner where 13 women were arrested last month on charges of unlawful assembly.

Their intention, they said, was to court such an arrest themselves, to call public attention to what they considered to be discriminatory police action against women.

The cops weren't fooled.

"One policeman came up and said, 'It's really nice to see some decent people in this area for a change,'" said Kathy Mader, one of the group who is a public defender.

McCarthy said he had decided before the demonstration to drop the unlawful assembly charges against the 13 women, because he said there was no evidence they had posed a clear and present danger

French kings and English royalty have played billiards, as well as American Presidents Washington, Lincoln, Garfield and Cleveland. John Quincy Adams billed the government $50 for a White House "billiard table, $6 for billiard balls and cues, $5" until he was denounced as a spendthrift and had to pay for it himself.

MONTCLAIR POSTAL HONORS — Eleven drivers of the Montclair Post Office have received the National Safety Council's Safe Driver Award.

Recipients of the award are Edward Furtak, Robert Houde, Claude Zook, William Bailey, Anthony LeBlanc, John Marchinsky, Lawrence Novak, John Craigmyle, Russell Judy, Norman Taylor and Tom Atkinson.

"Continued safe driving for a long period is not just accidental, but rather comes about through diligence, courtesy and a regard for one's fellow man," said Montclair Postmaster Anthony Zangri.

POMONA STUDENT AWARDS — Five students from Pomona's three high schools received $250 grants-in-aid from the Los Angeles Times.

They are Yolanda Rios of Garey High School, Wanda North of Pomona High School, Debra Stuart of Park Avenue High School, and Leonard Morris and Barbara J. Stewart of Ganesha High School.

The grant-in-aid fund is designed to assist average achieving students attain post-high school educational goals.

AG LEADERSHIP GRADS — Three area men graduated from the California Agricultural Leadership program during ceremonies at Kellogg West, continuing education center at Cal Poly.

The class was organized in 1972 with a group of 30 agriculturists selected from hundreds of California applicants. During the three-year program, class members met in study seminars at UC Davis, and Cal State campuses at Pomona, San Luis Obispo and Fresno.

Graduates from the area are Dale Long, co-owner, treasurer and general manager of Embly Ranch in Chino; Richard H. Greer, general manager of Pomona Wholesale Nursery, Inc., Pomona; and Bernard Teunissen, owner of Willow Springs Ranch in Corona.

O-M MOVIE PROGRAM — The Ontario-Montclair Council PTA is sponsoring a summer movie program at the Montclair Theater every Wednesday through Sept. 3.

Season tickets for the 12 shows and cartoon are $3.50. Children may attend either 12:30 or 3 p.m. showings. Adults will not be admitted unless accompanied by a child.

Tickets are being sold by various elementary and junior high schools in the area. They may also be purchased at the Montclair show. Tickets for individual shows may be purchased at the box office on the day of the show at regular admission prices.

Theater staff will supervise all performances. Over two hours of selected shows each week have been approved by the PTA.

UPLAND DRUM CORPS — The Upland Recreation Department has a new drum instructor and is recruiting members for the drum corps.

Gary Perkins, who was a leader in the Upland High School's percussion section, is rehearsing the drum corps each Wednesday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. in the Upland High School girls' dance room.

Youths between 7 and 17 are eligible to join the corps. If possible, recruits should bring a field drum. However, the department has a limited number of instruments.

The Children's Creative Workshop has donated $75 to the recreation department for a new drum.

Perkins will work with Judy Tison, Recreation Department baton instructor, in drilling the groups for participation in parades and other community programs.

BONITA CLASSES — Starting Monday, the Bonita Unified School District will offer classes in oil painting, real estate fundamentals, body conditioning for women, sewing, woodshop, home gardening and canning, conversational Spanish and car service.

Classes will be held in various schools of the district. There will be a $1 registration fee for the summer session which runs until Aug. 1. For further details of classes, persons may call the Education Center at 599-6787.

SENIOR CITIZEN LUNCHES — A free lunch program for senior citizens is being conducted each week day in Pomona at Bethel Baptist Church.

The program is being cosponsored by the South Hills Neighborhood Service Center and the South Hills Presbyterian Church.

The program is open to all persons over 55. Transportation can be provided upon request. For information, persons may call 623-8602 or 622-6033.

NEW SCRIPPS CHAIRMAN — Kenneth Rhodes, a Los Angeles attorney and Pasadena resident, was elected chairman of the Scripps College board of trustees for the 1975-76 academic year. Rhodes, who joined the Scripps board in 1968, served as vice chairman past year.

Rosemary Park, emeritus professor of higher education, UCLA Graduate School of Education, and Dr. Richard Call, medical director for Union Oil of Los Angeles, were elected vice chairmen.

WALNUT VOLUNTEER MONTH — Walnut Valley Unified School District is observing June as Volunteer Recognition Month.

A resolution approved by the school board recently expressed appreciation of many volunteers who "gave generously of their time and talents to help provide a quality education in the district."

Board members spoke of general enrichment of the educational process and increased satisfaction in achievement of students because of the efforts of volunteers.

The resolution signified gratitude for sizeable donations for special materials and equipment made by the school Community Clubs through fund-raising projects.

MARIONETTES — Characters from the fable, "Rumplestiltskin," come to life as puppets in the Riede Marionettes show to be performed Saturday at Indian Hill Village.

Puppeteer family to give Indian Hill show

The Riede Marionettes will perform Saturday at 7:30 and 8:30 p.m. on the Mall at Indian Hill Village in Pomona.

The 25-minute performances will include "Rumplestiltskin" and variety acts.

Members of the Riede Family have been doing marionette shows for more than 10 years. They create their own puppets and sets.

The head of the family, Richard J. Riede of Upland, teaches history at Montclair High School. Others in the family are Mrs. Riede, Doug, 17, Sue 15, and Steve, 14.

Poly architects try to outdo a winner

Pacific Telephone's award-winning Pasadena office building has been used by students of landscape architecture at Cal Poly for their educational program.

Under the leadership of Bob Perry, landscape architecture instructor in the university's School of Environmental Design, the students scrutinized the landscaping design of the office building in Pasadena.

Students reviewed the layout and then each member attempted to design his own concept of ideal landscaping for the area.

The Pasadena Beautiful Foundation awarded the structure the foundation's honor award this year for the most inspirational effort among all award nominations.

Deadline is June 30

Pomona now enrolling preschoolers

Enrollments for the full State Preschool Program in the Pomona Unified School District will be accepted weekdays through June 30 in the office in Portable C at Kingsley Elementary School.

The program serves prekindergarten boys and girls from low-income families, and children with special needs.

Classes, which will be limited to 16 children, will be held at Allison, Arroyo, Kellogg, Lexington and San Jose elementary schools Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to noon starting Sept. 10.

Daily children will be served snacks and hot lunches.

The State Preschool Program requires parent participation. Each child's family is responsible for two hours of classroom participation each week. Parent education classes are held monthly.

Registration is on a first-come, first-served basis. Parents are asked to bring birth certificates for their children, immunization records and either a Department of Public Social Services number or proof of income.

They do not have to live in the school area to register there.

Parents are responsible for transportation when school starts.

Additional information may be obtained by calling preschool specialist Judy Sneed at 623-5251, Ext. 317.

Nursery school at new site

The Kommunity Kids Nursery School offers an extensive program for valley children at its new location, 1055 N. White Ave. in Pomona.

The center is open from 6:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Monday through Friday for working parents. Registration at the nonprofit school, licensed by the state Department of Health and the Pomona Fire Department, is available throughout the year.

Services include an infant center to provide care for infants from 6 months old; a toddlers' haven where youngsters up to 2 years old are taught their first words and initial eating habits, toilet trained and helped in their first walking exercises; a preschool that offers a curriculum specially designed for 2 to 5-year-old children; and extended care service for children up to 14 who need after-school care.

A physical examination is required by the state Department of Health. A registered nurse is available for special health care.

Special consideration will be given to large families on the rate schedules.

Persons wishing additional information may call Mrs. Roberta Watts, director, at 622-9626 at 624-0770.

Ferry hours shut town down at 10

RIO VISTA (AP) — It's early to bed for the 500 inhabitants of Ryer Island in the Sacramento River delta, at least until the state restores 24-hour service on the Real McCoy ferry.

"It's shut down from 10 at night to 6 in the morning, so we can't go out at night unless we're home by 10," complained Mrs. Don Riley.

She operates a boat harbor on the artificial island, which is surrounded by levees, river sloughs and inlets in the mouth of the river 70 miles east of San Francisco.

This week a state hiring freeze and the resignation of two ferry operators forced a cutback in service to the community of 500 on the rural island.

It's still possible to get off the island at night, but it takes a 50-mile detour over back roads and bridges to nearby Rio Vista.

Bill Todd, spokesman for the state Department of Transportation, which operates the ferry, said the department had no choice but to put a crimp in the island's night life.

"It's because of the severe financial strain the department is in," he said. "This is all we can do until we can get more qualified operators."

Jury list expanded by measure

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Juries would be selected from lists of licensed drivers and registered voters under a bill winning Senate approval.

Sen. John Nejedly, a Walnut Creek Republican, said his bill would "expand our capacity to reach a broader cross-section of the community for jury service."

Currently jurors are picked only from voter registration lists.

A 22-8 vote Thursday sent the measure to the Assembly.

It is SB 22.

D.A. aides moved to sheriff

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Half of the Orange County district attorney's criminal investigative staff has been reassigned to the sheriff's department over protests from Dist. Atty. Cecil Hicks.

The county Board of Supervisors stripped the district atorney's staff of 22 investigators Thursday, an action which Hicks said was "power politics" by a "shadow government" which fears investigation by his office of political corruption.

The 22 men are presently assigned to investigate homocides, frauds, narcotics trafficking and organized crime.

Sheriff Brad Gates said the action was necessary because there was an overlapping of investigative functions, and that all investigations belonged in his department.

Board members said the move would produce more efficient investigations. They also said the district attorney should not have the authority to investigate cases.

Hicks said his office required its present staff of 63 investigators to assist local police departments in major crime investigations and to prepare cases for trial.

He said the loss of the men would not necessarily mean that he would not be able to continue probes of organized crime or other types of cases.

Hicks said if necessary he could hire outside investigators and bill the county.

Teen-agers blamed for S.F. fire

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The rampaging fire which charred 13 buildings in the Haight-Ashbury area was purposely set by one or more teenagers, arson investigators report.

Investigators said Thursday that the blaze, which ignited buildings in a square-block area, caused an estimated $220,000 in damages to apartments. There were no injuries, but scores of people were temporarily left homeless.

"We've questioned a whole bunch of kids and we know where we're going, but we have to have the hard evidence," one investigator said.

Car thief returns tot to home

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A two-year-old girl — asleep in the back seat of her mother's car when it was stolen — was quietly returned home before dawn today by a suspect who then sped off again, police said.

The girl, delivered nearly five hours after the theft, was unharmed, officers said.

A police spokesman said Cecilia Hierta left her child, Corina, asleep in her car late Thursday night when she returned home from a laundromat and took in a load of finished laundry.

She told officers that when she emerged again, she saw a man driving the car away, apparently unaware that the child was in the back.

Sgt. Richard Roach of the Rampart Division said patrol cars and a police helicopter had been dispatched to search for the vehicle.

Vigilante pair sought

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Sheriff's deputies were searching today for two persons believed to be members of a vigilante-type group that allegedly kidnaped three persons in retaliation for a stolen television set and then killed one of them.

Six members of the group, arrested earlier this week following the death of Joseph U. Arce, 26, were booked for investigation of murder, kidnaping, burglary, false imprisonment, conspiracy and receiving stolen property, deputies said.

Officers said Arce apparently was thrown off a Palos Verdes cliff near Marineland June 12.

They said Arce was kidnaped from his Gardena home along with two other men after a television set belonging to Delores Whalley, 28, was stolen June 10 from her home in nearby Lawndale.

There was no indication why the three men were apparently held responsible for the theft by the vigilante gang.

Sheriff's deputies said the three men were taken to the home of Robert M. Whalley, 30, Mrs. Whalley's ex-husband, and held captive there until the next day when the television set was returned under undisclosed circumstances.

Authorities said two of the men were released unharmed but Arce was hurled off the cliff sometime after midnight.

Booked with the Whalleys were Paula Boyer, 22, of Redondo Beach; Darryl R. Fannin, 23, Lawndale; James E. Nemeth, 18, Lancaster; Gordon E. Brucker, 34, Lawndale; Mark L. Crawford, 21, Carson, and Gary S. Aman, 18, El Segundo.

2 convicted for murder in holdup

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — Two San Bernardino men were convicted by a Superior Court jury of murdering a Fontana liquor store owner during a $32,000 armed robbery.

The panel deliberated less than six hours Thursday before returning its verdict against Reginald Hardy, 20, and Sammy Johns Jr., 26.

Emmett McGuire, 52, was shot and killed in his store Feb. 26. Officials said he had obtained the large amount of money to cash payroll checks. About $30,000 is still missing, police said.

The two defendents are scheduled to be sentenced July 16.

Police balk over label of agents

IRVINE (AP) — The city fathers of this fledgling community have agreed to call their new policemen "officers" after the cops balked at being labeled "agents."

The City Council, seeking a new image for law enforcement in this three-year-old planned community, came up with the title "agents" a few months ago.

One new "officer" explains: "With the investigations into the CIA and everything, 'agent' didn't seem like such a good name after all."

Brown's public employe bargaining bill dealt blow

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s legislative lieutenants try today to salvage his public employe collective bargaining bill in the Assembly, after a serious setback in the Senate.

The Senate Finance Committee voted Thursday to delay the bill for at least another year. The committee postponed further hearings until August, making it impossible for the bill to become effective before Jan. 1, 1977.

The Brown team, still hoping to put collective bargaining into effect for 1.3 million public employes next Jan. 1, shifted their efforts to the Assembly.

An Assembly bill, identical to the one derailed by the Senate committee, comes up for a hearing today in the Ways and Means Committee Friday.

The Senate committee shunted the bill aside after adopting a student sponsored amendment that would put a non-voting student observer in college negotiation sessions.

With that action, Jack Henning, chief lobbyist for the California AFL-CIO, heatedly withdrew his support for the bill, saying labor could not tolerate "third-party" negotiations." He said the student observer would be a "disruptive influence."

The Brown plan would guarantee and regulate collective bargaining for professors, public school teachers, policemen, firemen and hundreds of thousands of other employes of state, cities, counties and other government agencies in California.

It would not legalize public strikes, nor provide for binding arbitration.

The Finance Committee vote was on a motion by Sen. Alfred Alquist, D-San Jose, to recess further hearings until August.

Dills pleaded vainly for more hearings by the Senate Committee today.

"Maybe you'll feel better about it after you've had a little rest," he said.

Voting to delay the bill were Alquist and Sens. Peter Behr, R Tiburon; Dennis Carpenter, R-Newport Beach; Randolph Collier, D-Yreka; Lou Cusanovich, R-Van Nuys; Albert Rodda, D-Sacramento; Walter Stiern, D-Bakersfield; Howard Way, R-Exeter, and Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville.

Against delay were Sens. John Holmdahl, D-Castro Valley; Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, David Roberti, D-Los Angeles, and Chairman Anthony Beilenson, D-Los Angeles.

The committee had rejected a series of amendments by Grunsky and Alquist, introduced at the request of various factions in the educational system.

One of Alquist's amendments would have put city police captains and lieutenants in the bargaining unit, rather than exempting them as supervisors. The League of California Cities said approval of such an amendment would end its support of the bill.

Grunsky unsuccessfully proposed amendments to limit the scope of negotiations, in an effort to prevent labor unions having any say in the academic decisions of colleges.

The amendment to put a student observer in college negotiation sessions was sponsored by Petris, and carried on a 9-4 vote, with all the committee Republicans voting for it.

Concealed weapons bill fails

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Senate has defeated a bill that would provide harsher penalties for carrying concealed weapons.

Sen. Alan Robbins' bill fell two votes short Thursday on a 19-17 roll call, but the upper house agreed to reconsider the measure later.

The bill needed at least 21 votes to clear the Senate.

Under current law a person who carries a concealed weapon without a license can receive either misdemeanor or felony penalties. Robbins' bill would make all such cases felonies.

Critics argued that the bill took a sledgehammer approach to the problem.

The Van Nuys Democrat's bill is SB 1104.

Eagle Scout faces trial

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A jury was being picked today to try Daniel Altstadt, an 18-year-old Eagle Scout and honor student charged with murdering his parents and his older sister.

Dear Jo:

I worship God in my own way at home, alone. I don't go to church because there are so many hypocrites in it. Does that make sense to you?

—Practical

Dear Practical:

About as much sense as a critically ill person staying away from a hospital because there are sick people in it! People gather together to worship for a variety of reasons, but the main one is because God said to. (Heb. 10:24) "Let us consider (inspire) one another to provoke unto love and to good works, not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together . . ." We have a very practical God and He knows it is easier to function as His servants when we have the support and encouragement of fellow Christians. Of course there are some hypocrites in the church and I'm glad they are there! They need the cleansing and molding of our Lord Jesus. Why don't you come and pray for them?

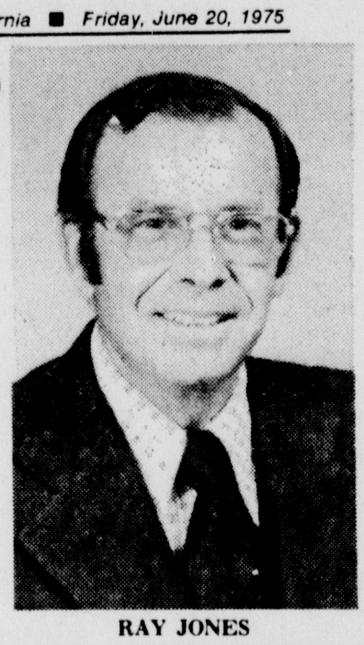
Management group elects new officers

Ray Jones of Ontario has been elected president of the Pomona Chapter of the National Management Association at the General Dynamics plant.

Jones, who served as vice president last year, is a member of the plant's planning and fiscal control function.

Other officers elected were Jack Abels, vice president; Larry Robb, recording secretary; Arthur Lyman, membership secretary; Lee Steers, treasurer; and Jim Dacolias and John Donaldson, board of control.

The chapter has awarded $600 scholarships to Mary Ann Domico, Richard Hall, Paul McLaughlin and Shawna Taylor.



RAY JONES

New vice president appointed at Pascoe

William H. Clarke has been appointed new president of the Pascoe Steel Corp. in Pomona.

The firm, which manufactures pre-engineered metal buildings, is a subsidiary of Amcord, Inc. His appointment was announced by William T. Pascoe III, Amcord's board chairman.

Clarke, a graduate engineer from UC Berkeley, joined Pascoe in 1966 and served as vice president and general manager of the Georgia operation and as executive vice president.

He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and the Metal Building Manufacturers Association. Clarke and his wife, Nancy, have two children. The family resides in Tustin.

Spaghetti feed at PSH

The Parents Coordinating Council of Pacific State Hospital in Pomona has scheduled its annual spaghetti luncheon Sunday afternoon at the Rustic Campground at the hospital.

The public is invited to the program from noon to 3 p.m. A $2 donation will be asked for the afternoon's events which include a luncheon, entertainment by the Ballet Folklorico and the Sawdusters

Sally Rand to judge art at convalescent hospital

Fan dancer Sally Rand will be the judge for the entries in the Arts & Crafts Festival at the Pomona Golden Age Convalescent Hospital, 215 W. Pearl St., from 3 to 5 p.m. Saturday.

On exhibit will be quilting, needlework, decorative art works and other items. Admission is free. Refreshments will be served and a band will provide entertainment.

Miss Rand, who soared to fame with her exotic dance at the Chicago World's Fair in 1933, took up painting later in life and is proud of a blue ribbon she won in a show of the Las Vegas Art League.

Miss Rand (she took her stage name from a Rand-McNally map) is a resident of Glendora. She was inspired to a dance career at the age of 6 when she saw the lengendary Pavlova perform in Kansas City. Her career spanned four decades and included four world's fairs and movie roles with Will Rogers, Hoot Gibson, George Raft and others. Now 71, she still does her dance routines daily and performed for a sellout audience in the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center last year.

Ontario, Upland to get dial-a-ride service

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Ontario and Upland will have a dial-a-ride service as soon as the contract with a private taxi cab company is approved by the West Valley Transit Service Authority attorney.

The WVTSA authorized City Manager Lee Travers of Upland and Asst. City Manager Roger Hughbanks of Ontario to move ahead with implementation of the service after attorney Don Maroney gives final legal approval to the document. The authority tentatively agreed to contract with Paul's Yellow Cab, owned by Gene Stalians.

The dial-a-ride-or demand responsive-service allows residents to call for the vehicle to pick them up at home and take them to certain fixed locations.

The service would be provided to residents at a lesser cost than regular taxi service.

The WVTSA originally contracted with the consulting firm of Dave Systems for the development of a demand response for the City of Chino. However, consultants recommended against the service in Chino. However, consultants recommended against the service in Chino because of the expense involved. Subsequently, the plan for Ontario and Upland developed.

Travers, chairman of the WVTSA technical committee, recommended that Stalians' company be awarded the contract because it already had the necessary equipment and experienced personnel. The recommendation ended several months of controversy between the authority and Stalians on his position that the taxi, rather than the Omnitrans mini-bus, should offer the demand responsive service.

The board, in another action, reaffirmed its position that San Bernardino County pay the total costs of the intercommunity line from the East Valley to the West End. Members unanimously agreed to request county supervisors to formalize an agreement for the county to fund the interconnecting line and for the San Bernardino Transit System to extend that line to the Indian Hill Village in Pomona.

The actions were prompted by a report from Mike Walker of the county Transportation Department that SBTS would approach the supervisors with a request for the county to pay operational costs of the intercommunity line and capital costs be paid by cities served. The SBTS felt that some cities were freeloading and were not meeting any of the costs of the service, said Walker.

The SBTS also proposes to change the route from Foothill Boulevard to Arrow Highway to serve more population in west Fontana and east Upland, travel south on Mountain and Central avenues to Holt Boulevard and over to the Indian Hill Village.

Walker pointed out that the total costs of the extension from San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland to the shopping center would be 90 cents per mile. As an example offered by Walker, this would be broken down under the SBTS formula to 64 cents per mile operational and maintenance costs paid by the county and 26 cents per mile capital costs paid by the cities.

WVTSA Chairman Harold Hayes, Travers, Hughbanks and Chino Councilwoman Eileen Carter voiced opposition to the SBTS formula.

"The WVTSA does not feel it should share costs on a link line through the cities. The county should pay the entire costs of the intercommunity lines as previously understood," Travers said.

The funding for the line has been a "gentleman's agreement" between the jurisdictions that has never been formally approved by the Board of Supervisors.

William works hard and is striving to keep his family together and to eventually get them off welfare.

William is only 11 but he speaks with determination and intelligence.

William is the oldest in a family of five children. His father died in an automobile accident several years ago and William's mother has never quite recovered. She is affectionate and a good mother to her children but the responsibility of managing the household is all on William's shoulders.

William does not want to go to camp himself but he wants his younger brother, Tom, to go. Tom is 9 and looks up to William. "He's my right-hand man," says William when sepaking of Tom. "And I know camp would be good for him. That's all he can talk about."

Both William and Tom have paper routes and for the week Tom would be going to Camp William has arranged for another boy to take the route.

The photograph of a girl camper which appeared in last Sunday's Progress-Bulletin to illustrate the send-a-kid-to-camp program being sponsored by the Donrey Public Foundation was loaned to the newspaper by the local Girl Scout Council. The girl appearing in the photograph is not representative of the group of underprivileged children who will benefit from public donations to the camp fund.

Your dollars can help send Tom and other local needy children to a week of summer camp in the San Bernardino Mountains.

Relief organizer seeking food, clothes for Mexico

Joe Brown, the valley resident who has worked since 1962 to supply food and clothing for starving people in Tijuana, again seeks supplies to help the Mexican people.

Residents who have food or other supplies for the people residing in the "dump" are of the border town are asked to call Brown at 627-5947 or write him at 6112 Salem St., Chino, 91710.

In 1962, Brown accompanied a church bus to Baja, Mexico, for an outing. The bus ran out of gas on the outskirts of Tijuana and Brown volunteered to hike to town for gas.

In doing so, he cut across the city dump and discovered a small community of diseased and starving natives. In later weeks, he collected supplies and returned to help the people.

This mission has continued through the years with the assistance of organizations and individuals in the valley.

Brown says the need continues and he is appealing for supplies to deliver to the people in the area.

O-M school board approves budget; teacher rep miffed

By JOE FIRMAN
PB Staff Writer

The board of trustees of the Ontario-Montclair School District adopted a tentative budget of $17,864,703 despite protests by the Ontario-Montclair Teachers' Association.

The budget includes a 7 per cent salary increase for teachers, but Darvel Allred, association president, told the board that in view of the 12 per cent inflationary increase, the 7 per cent increase is really a 5 per cent cut. "We object to this," he said.

Supt. Jack J. Jones outlined the district's position ("historically below average") and expressed concern for next year's financial status. Senate Bill 90, effective in 1973-74, had helped the district, he said, but "it was a good plan that failed because of excessive inflation."

The budget calls for an estimated income of $16,461,130 plus restricted funds that bring the total money available to $17,864,703.

Jones said that based on projected estimates, the district would be $788,000 in the red for the 1976-77 term. This would call for more sharp cutbacks on expenditures already whittled to the bone.

"We may have to take the issue to the citizens," Jones said. "We must get more community involvement. We should establish a large committee, made up of representatives of all the schools and nonparents as well as parents, to report to the board possible solutions."

Final vote on the 1975-76 budget will be taken by the trustees in August.

In other actions the board also:

—Granted an easement to the City of Montclair on district property at Monte Vista Avenue and Orchard Street so the city can construct a flood control structure.

—Awarded a contract for roofing Lehigh and Euclid schools and the district maintenance building to W. H. Byars, Ontario roofing firm, whose bid of $37,370 was lowest of three submitted.

—Awarded a contract for painting Leigh and Cypress schools, the Cypress Orthopedic Unit and the Vina Danks annex to Marven Johnson, Pomona painting company, on a bid of $52,855, lower of two submitted.

—Discussed the possibility of Ontario's taking over the abandoned San Antonio School site for a city park. Dennis Wilkins, director of public services for the city, expressed optimism that the project would go through to the mutual benefit of the city and the school district. He said he would put the matter before the Parks and Recreation Department Monday.

The board adjourned the meeting at 7:30 p.m. The next meeting is scheduled for 4 p.m. July 17.

Gloomy June weather due to continue

The gloomiest June in many years still plagues Southlanders as clouds, drizzles and low temperatures continue today.

While valley residents reported using their windshield wipers Thursday evening, weather stations in all local communities reported no overnight measurable rain, however.

Daily temperatures so far this month in the basin area have averaged only 70.8 degrees — 5.5 degrees below the June normal of 76.3 degrees.

This is in contrast to temperatures which averaged close to 80 during much of January this year, weather officials in Los Angeles said.

The U.S. National Weather Service in Riverside said temperatures today will be 68 as a high with a low tonight of 55. A warming trend is due for the weekend with clouds in the mornings and evenings giving way to sunshine in the afternoons.

The Riverside weather observers said that June is usually one of the coolest months in Southern California and that some light rain is to be expected. Most years' charts show some measurable rain in June.

Officials added that this month's cloudiness has been caused by a somewhat different weather condition, resulting in high humidity but actually less rainfall than normal.

While local communities have been enveloped in a layer of clouds, desert areas around Palm Springs and Indio have been hit by some of the worse wind and stand storms in years. The storm has caused an estimated $1 million in property loss in the low desert area, officials report.

The winds appear to be abating, but motorists planning to enter desert areas over the weekend would be wise to check travel conditions.

Persons seeking wind conditions may call the Claremont office of the California Highway Patrol, 621-4811.

El Roble pool

El Roble swimming pool in Claremont opened Thursday for the summer session with four introductory 10-cent swim days scheduled through Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

School day camps begin

Pomona Valley Christian Schools, 845 E. Arrow Highway, Pomona, has launched its summer day camp program, continuing through Sept. 5.

Raymond Nevills, principal, said the schools have designed a special program of unique summer experiences for boys and girls.

Individual and balanced programming is the objective for each child, he said. Some of the additions to the program are extended arts and crafts periods, archery, baton classes, pony cart rides, swimming lessons, field trips and structural games.

The academic enrichment program of day camp will run Monday through July 28. Special tutoring in math and reading is available throughout the summer.

A day camp brochure is available which explains the program in its entirety. Persons may contact the school office by calling 624-1678.

INDIAN DANCERS

Historical Society to hold big barbecue

The Historical Society of Pomona Valley will hold its annual barbecue for the public on Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. at the old Phillips Mansion in Pomona.

Dinners will be served throughout the afternoon with entertainment scheduled between 12:30 and 3:45 p.m.

Master of ceremonies for the event will be Oscar Edinger Jr., retired president of Mt. San Antonio College.

Entertainment will be provided by the Pomona Concert Band, the Ballet Folklorico Atzlan and the Girls Unlimited singing group. Indian dances will be performed by members of the Navajo Lodge 98, Order of the Arrow, Old Baldy Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Alumni of the Pomona High School class of 1925 will be special guests.

Free rides on the Wells Fargo stagecoach and tours of the mansion will be offered.

A donation of $3.50 for adults and $1.75 for children under 10 is being asked. Tickets may be secured at the barbecue.

Hanford girl is selected as state dairy princess

Carolyn Veenendaal, an 18-year-old Hanford girl, is the new California Dairy Princess.

Miss Veenendaal captured the state title Thursday in the 18th annual California Dairy Princess contest sponsored by the Milk Advisory Board in Fresno.

Representing District 9, Miss Veenendaal succeeds Julia DeVries of Upland, who crowned the new princess.

Gertie Breedyk, 20, daughter of a Chino dairyman, represented District 11 and 12 in the state contest.

Named first and second alternates to Miss Veenendaal were Margaret Konyn, 21, of Escondido and Laurie Peek, 19, of Cottonwood.

Twelve contestants from all over the state participated in the contest, with coronation finals conducted at Fresno's Sheraton Inn.

Congress politics while voters burn

The supposedly "veto-proof" 94th Congress apparently thinks it is voter-proof, too. That at any rate is the impression one gets from remarks made by House majority leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill the other day.

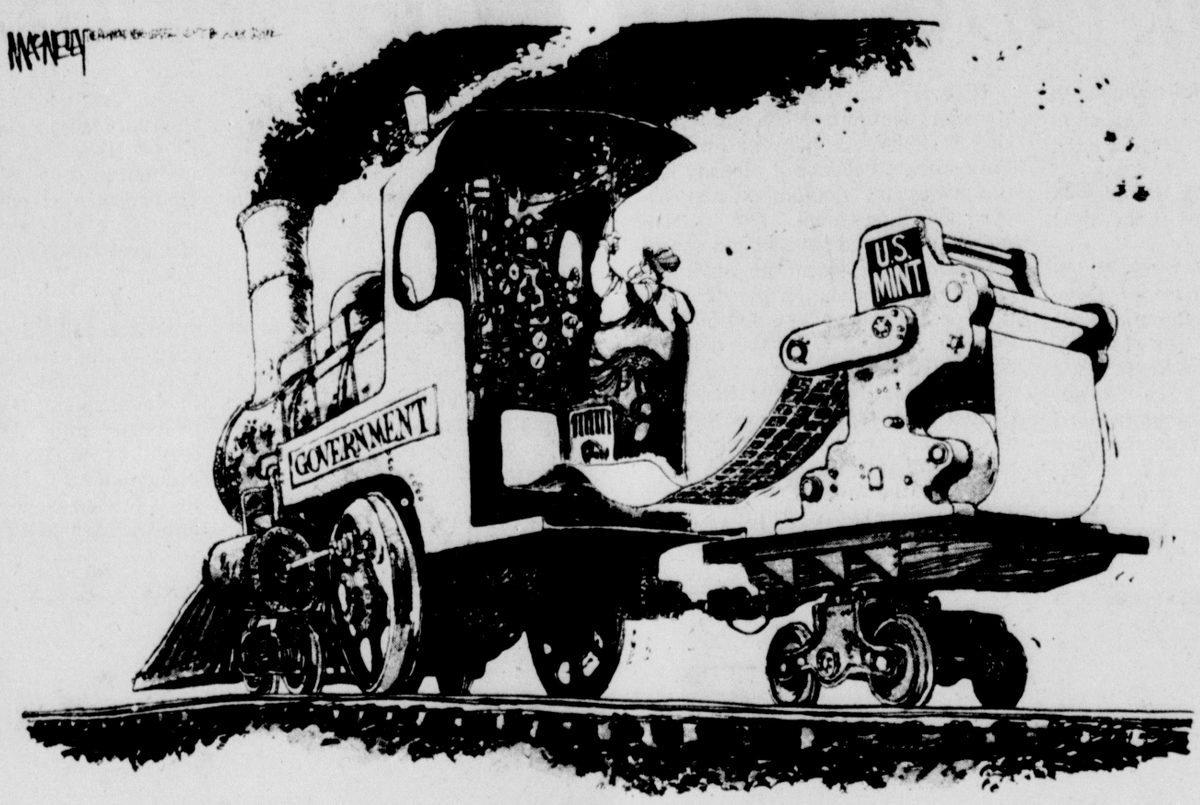
"The flowers that bloom in the spring wither in the fall," chirruped the Massachusetts Democrat. Commenting on President Ford's complaints about congressional dilly-dallying on energy and other matters, he promised that "beginning about next September, we'll take off on him. The economic woes of the nation are going to fall on Jerry's shoulders."

In other words, a heavily Democratic Congress, which on paper commands more than enough votes in both houses to pass almost any program it wishes, has chosen to fiddle around playing politics while any number of issues burn just so it can point the finger of blame at a Republican president.

Heaven knows, Mr. Ford has invited plenty of criticism by such actions as vetoing the strip-mining bill and legislation to create 900,000 federally financed jobs and by his inflation-fueling increase of the tariff on imported oil. But at least he is acting on the basis of what he believes should or should not be done in these areas and it is not as if Congress were helpless in the face of overweening presidential authority.

Yet instead of girding itself to override the vetoes (at the risk of incurring the onus if the nation's energy or unemployment problems remained intractible), or coming up with legislation the President could accept, the Democrats seem to be congratulating themselves that the worse things get, the better they'll look.

Maybe all this is an unfair reading of O'Neill's words. But if enough voters get the idea that that's what is going on down in Washington, any Democratic hopes of cashing in at the polls next year at the expense of the President's party could evaporate as quickly as did the fears that a "veto-proof" Congress would ride roughshod over the executive.



Jobs are there

No matter how hard times get, there are always jobs going begging — for people willing to provide a reliable service and who aren't above part-time work.

"A lot of people simply don't realize that dozens of part-time jobs are available that anyone can do," says the president of a New York employment agency specializing in temporary help.

This and other experts recently consulted by the National Enquirer suggest a number of part-time possibilities, including:

Dog Walker. In some areas a dog walker is paid $15 a week per dog, and he can take as many as seven or eight at a time.

Animal Sitter. Many dog and cat owners going on vacation want to board their pets or have them cared for at home. The pay ranges up to $7 a day per animal.

Outdoor and Indoor Chores. There's always a need for people to mow lawns, wash cars, etc. And with more women working outside the home, there are more opportunities for light household services.

Crowd Control. Local events involving large crowds need ushers, ticket-takers, parking lot attendants.

Sales. Freelance jobs always available for house-to-house sales of vacuum cleaners, magazines or encyclopedias. One major encyclopedia publisher, in fact, has launched a nationwide campaign to recruit 40,000 full or part-time sales representatives by July.

None of these jobs requires an employment agency. Once you've selected a part-time service that interests you, say the experts, advertise in community newspapers and put notices on bulletin boards. Word-of-mouth advertising among relatives and friends is also a good way to start.

Thoughts

Proclaim this among the nations: Prepare war, stir up the mighty men. Let all the men of war draw near, let them come up. Beat your plowshares into swords and your pruning hooks into spears; let the weak say, "I am a warrior." — Joel 3:9, 10.

"There is no nation on earth so dangerous as a nation fully armed and bankrupt at home." — Henry Cabot Lodge, American statesman.

But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, selfcontrol; against such there is no law. — Galatians 5:22,23.

"Today we are afraid of simple words like goodness and mercy and kindness. We don't believe in the good old words because we don't believe in the good old values anymore. And that is why the world is so sick." — Lin Yutang, Chinese philosopher.

Judicial reform needed

Dear Editor:

I'm writing to you as a concerned individual. Juvenile crime has become such a problem, that I think it's about time that someone starts to bring it out into the open And Do something about it. Juvenile crime and punishment in a total prospective needs to be re-evaluated.

The juveniles of today are not dumb, on the contrary, they are very well informed and quick to catch on to the things which they can get away with. Something must be done with these young people who consistently evade the law and successfully. A young person will rationalize in his own mind his reasons for breaking the law. Then weigh the consequences and find that in the long run; it pays to steal, rob, attack, beat, and rape (yes, even to rape), because they know that the sentence they will receive will not "cramp their style", but "enhance" it.

I would like to use as reference, one of a thousand articles. It concerns a youth who was sent to California Youth Authority, but was tried as an adult. If a juvenile has been tried as an adult, why punish him as a child? It doesn't make sense! the charges brought before this young man were by no means juvenile crimes. But when you read the outcome of the case, it was "Plea Bargained" out to just two crimes.

Does this mean that the other terrible crimes that he did are just to be forgotten? To pretend that they didn't happen? What about the victims? Or do they even exist in the situation after the crime has been committed? Is their personal anguish, pain, and fears just supposed to be left unrelieved? What are we paying the state to do? They claim they are so over-loaded with cases as it is; so they blindly overlook some that are before the court this time essentially saying . . . "We'll catch ya' the next time up here."? What do other businesses do when they have more business than they can handle? We're paying them to handle these people who break the laws which govern our daily lives.

So what should be done? Maybe we should start at the top. Why not have all judges, regardless, be elected to their office and not appointed. The state should start "taking the time", instead of "wasting the time" to prosecute as far as possible. If a juvenile is sentenced to be tried as an adult, the sentence should be the same also.

The whole juvenile system for criminal punishment needs some revamping to fit the "well educated juvenile criminal" of today. And last but not least, . . . The whole judicial-law system needs some reforming, for the "Liberty and Justice For All". — A Concerned American

Putting Kim on notice

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary James Schlesinger has been trying to send a message to Pyongang. He wants to put North Korea's Premier Kim Il-sung on notice, according to competent sources, that Kim may risk nuclear retaliation if he attempts to revive the Korean War.

Schlesinger has placed increased emphasis lately on limited nuclear warfare as a military option. In the backrooms of the Pentagon, he has suggested striking North Korean targets with tactical nuclear weapons if the Communist forces attempt to cross the 38th parallel.

Schlesinger would like to get this word to the recklessly ambitious Kim who for months has been tunneling under the demilitarized zone and has now deployed armored forces for a possible offensive.

Schlesinger has issued public warnings of a direct attack upon North Korean military forces if a conflict should flare up. He has been careful, however, not to mention nuclear retaliation in public.

The cautious warnings have had the approval of President Ford, who hoped to deter Pyongang without alarming Peking and Moscow. The President has taken pains also not to stir up Congress. He has given private assurances to congressional leaders that he will not order U.S. forces into combat in Korea without formal congressional approval.

Meanwhile, Schlesinger has pushed the development of mobile nuclear weapons as the best defense against future Koreas and Vietnams. The Strategic Air Command has sent top-secret briefing teams to explain the new nuclear policy to bomber crews and missile wings. In military shorthand, the secret briefings are called NUWEP, which means Nuclear Weapons Employment Policy.

This is more a change of emphasis than a change of policy. The Limited Nuclear Option, or LNO in military parlance, has been available to the President since the early 1960s. Throughout the Vietnam War, for example, the possibility always existed that nuclear weapons might have been used against selected targets in Vietnam.

We have established that some U.S. planes actually flew combat missions with tactical nuclear weapons. Competent sources told us that in the mid-1960s an F-102 pilot fired a nuclear missile by accident against some North Vietnamese gunboats in Haiphong Bay. The error reportedly was caused by a crossed wire in the firing safety mechanism.

We did our best to check out the incident but were never able to confirm it. Although we were given the name of the pilot who allegedly misfired the nuke, we were never able to track him down.

Our allies, meanwhile, are apprehensive over Schlesinger's new emphasis on limited nuclear warfare. The controversy is summarized in a confidential NATO document in our possession.

"Nuclear attack would be met by whatever scale of launch the circumstances demanded, including, for example, a precision strike against Soviet military targets," states the document.

"Supporters of this change claim that it gives the U.S. President greater flexibility in decision making; that it adds to the credibility of the nuclear guarantee to Europe; and it informs the USSR that United States is prepared to continue the arms race if necessary.

"Critics, however, maintain that in making the use of nuclear weapons more feasible, it increases the possibility of a nuclear war; also it is destabilizing, in that the USSR could interpret it as a move towards a first strike capability."

WILD FLIGHT: Two senior Senate staff members had themselves a boisterous time on a recent flight to London.

The rampageous pair, Robert Vastine and Paul Leventhal, both members of the Senate Government Operations Committee staff, booked first-class passage, although they were supposed to travel by coach as an economy measure.

They had scarcely settled in their plush seats, according to witnesses, than they were served champagne. The two Senate employes quickly polished off a bottle of Moet, along with shrimp cocktail and other hors d'oeuvres.

Later Vastine asked for red wine to wash down his main course. When the stewardess informed him there was nothing but Bordeaux on board, he began hollering about the terrible service.

Nonetheless, the Senate staffers downed two full bottles of Bordeaux, which Vastine grabbed from the stewardess' hand. He also ate three portions of roast beef, followed by a double portion of ice cream.

Yet he raised such a howl about the poor service that a stewardess rushed from the first class cabin in tears.

Teddy's ready not to run

"Teddy, why are you holding your breath?"

"I'm holding my breath to prove that I'm not going to run for President. Then I'm going to cross my heart for a while, promise honest Injun, give scout's honor, have a few affadavits made up and take out an ad in all the papers."

"But you've already said you aren't going to run for president. Why do people keep doubting you?"

"It beats me. I go to California to make a speech and they say they don't believe me. I make a fact-finding tour of the Middle East and they say they don't believe me. I show up on a few national television programs and they say they don't believe me. I make a few comments about national policy and they say they don't believe me. I go to a few fund-raising affairs and they say they don't believe me.

"I can't understand it."

"I can't either, Ted. I heard somebody say the other day that a lot of people thought you were just being coy. But I'm sure, though, that the chap was kidding."

"Chappaquiddick? Who said anything about Chappaquiddick? How can I complete my plans to not run for President if everybody keeps talking about Chappaquiddick?"

"No, no, you misunderstood. I was just talking about all those cynical people who think that you're just pretending you're not going to run so you can change your mind at the last minute in a fit of generosity."

"Who, me? Ha ha. Ha ha ha ha. Ha. Ha ha. Ha ha ha. And so on. It's so ridiculous, all I have to say is that if I run for President, you will run for vice-president."

"Gee, Teddy, really? Why, thanks a lot. I'll try to fulfill the duties the Constitution . . . Or, that is, yes, that's pretty funny, all right. By the way, what are your real ambitions?"

"Well, as you know, those of us who have worked our way up from the ranks always appreciate our positions, so I'm just content to be a humble old senator, whiling away my years making perceptive observations and filling in the odd hours by not running for President."

"I understand, though it's too bad, since a lot of people really think you should run, you know."

"Well, if you insist, I just happen to have my acceptance speech right here. Uh, ha ha, ha. Just kidding, of course. I certainly was just kidding; I definitely won't run for President."

"Right, Teddy, but there's just one thing. Whenever you make that promise, you get this pained look on your face. Is it because your back hurts? Because of regret? Because you hate to disappoint your countrymen?"

"You'd look pained, too, if you had to keep crossing your toes all the time."

Just in jest

There's no denying the fact that American knowhow has created thousands of major miracles. And we rightly applaud the scientists, the inventors, the technicians who have contributed so much to our well being. But the time has come, I say, to also give recognition to that vast number of unsung mental giants whose efforts have created such minor miracles as a windshield wiper for eyeglasses — a home neon light machine for egocentrics that flashes their names on and off in brilliant color — or the electronic TV commercial eliminator. — And most certainly a very special award to that beauty contest queen who discovered that by taking a strong laxative before the bathing suit competition she would be assured of going on stage with a flat stomach.

D.C.'s delegate just looks on WASHINGTON — (NEA) — As far as constituencies go, Washington D.C.'s Walter Fauntroy is one of the most important members of the House of Representatives. He speaks for three quarters of a million people, more than any other congressman, who contribute almost $1 billion annually to the federal treasury, also a superlative statistic in a nation where money is power.

Yet in terms of legislative influence, Fauntroy is zilch. As a congressional power he ranks somewhere between the member from Guam and the night custodian. Fauntroy is not properly a Representative with a capital R, he is a delegate with a small d, though he is the only official political emissary to Capitol Hill from the streets of the District, he mostly is an observer; the Constitution of the nation prevents Fauntroy from voting on, and his constituency from full participation in, the nation's business.

Quite naturally, the situation — "taxation without representation", as Fauntroy correctly calls it — has been a primary local exasperation since 1790, when Fletcher Christian commandeered the good ship Bounty on one side of the world, and, on the other, Congress authorized the establishment of the American capital on the river Potomac.

At the time, Congress said nothing about preventing residents of the capital from participating in representative government, but by establishing it as the District of Columbia, and not a city in Maryland or Virginia, residents become trapped by that portion of the Constitution which permits only states to vote in Congress.

Interestingly, this ancient and silly violation of democratic principle seldom has been considered outside the immediate area. College instructors are forever publishing polls which indicate that large numbers of otherwise thoughtful Americans do not even know the situation exists. Until 1971 the District was not so much as allowed a delegate in Congress, until last year the residents could not so much as vote for their one mayor or council (Congress ran the city), yet even as homosexuals have enlisted widespread aid and sympathy in their fight for civil rights, 722,000 Washington citizens have in the main suffered alone as inhabitants of the last U.S. colony.

The good news now is that, according to Fauntroy, the colonialists' suffering may be approaching an end. The delegate has teamed with Sen. Edward Kennedy (D. Mass.) to introduce legislation which would amend the Constitution and thereby, after 185 years, put Washington citizenship on the same level as other Americans. Fauntroy-Kennedy would allow locals to vote for two U.S. senators and two U.S. congressmen, giving them not only a voice but a loud bellow in the legislative debate affecting their lives and pocketbooks.

Kennedy says, as is his penchant for following large ideas with small mumbles, that full representation is "an issue whose time has come." And Fauntroy, too is optimistic, has people giving even odds to passage of the proposal. But in truth, few others in town are counting the ballots before they're cast; the reason is that Fauntroy-Kennedy may be asking for too much for Washington, not too much in the way of freedom, but in influence. Four voting members, two on each side of the legislature, would make the District the most powerfully represented city in America.

Besides this, and perhaps even more importantly, the powerful representation would, in a town only 24 per cent white, almost assuredly be all black — a notion that men in Congress find impossible to accept.

During the District's long fight for home rule (the right to elect local officers rather than have them appointed by others), members of Congress including Rep. Gerald Ford, slandered the capacity of the locals to be trusted with power. Some in Congress minced few words: former Rep. John Rarick called the mostly black population "transients and migrants." Others were more diplomatic but the point, usually, was clear: darkies can sing and dance well, but heavens, legislate?

So it is that the Fauntroy-Kennedy proposal addresses itself to a larger matter than taxation without representation. Congress must also decide whether to vastly increase black power in this town and nation. One way or another, its decision will say a lot about where America has been and where it is going.

Would welcome ties with tuberous sclerosis families

Our son has a disease called tuberous sclerosis.

Has your newspaper come in contact with anyone who either has tuberous sclerosis or knows about it?

We also had a daughter who had the disease. She died in February 1966.

If you have any information you can give me please contact me. — Mrs. S. T., Pomona.

When we telephoned you, we discovered that your intention was not so much to gather information as to share it and mental and emotional support with others afflicted by tuberous sclerosis and their families.

Although your daughter died of the disease, it is seldom fatal, you told us.

Tuberous sclerosis is frequently tied in with epilepsy and retardation, you said.

You identified yourself as Mrs. Sandra J. Tate and said you would like to talk with families of children and adults who have the disease. Your address is the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds Trailer Park, Pomona, 91766.

Information about the disease may be obtained by writing to the National Tuberous Sclerosis Association, P. O. Box 7726, Riverside 92503.

I get a disability check through Social Security and am entitled to a check from the Veterans Administration because I am the widow of a veteran.

My VA check hasn't been coming. I am behind in my house payments and the loan company is threatening foreclosure.

I had to make two trips to the South because of deaths in my family. I just don't have the money to make up the back house payments. What can I do? —L. O., Pomona.

The letter above was dictated because you said you could neither read nor write.

Our appeal to the VA brought a quick favorable telephone response. We contacted the loan company and the foreclosure deadline was extended. and the foreclosure deadline was extended.

You received a letter from the VA regional office explaining that because of an error in your annual questionnaire card your pension was automatically cut off Jan. 1, 1975.

This was because you included your income through Social Security as "other income" on the card without identifying the source.

You were assured that a check would reach you shortly.

In spite of your claim that you couldn't read, you did read the VA letter to a representative of the loan company and the foreclosure deadline was again extended.

When the check arrived you had enough to make up your back payments but were faced with the fact that an additional payment was due.

We don't know how your problem will eventually come out but we do know that several organizations and individuals went to a lot of trouble to try to help you.

I'd like to take a minute to tell you about the exemplary service I received from Authorized Television Service in Pomona.

I called Authorized to Service our four-year-old RCA color set when it went on the blink. Since I do not know a tube from a transistor, I was in a precarious position as a consumer. On the basis of response to previous service calls, I decided to let Authorized Television have a go at it.

From the time my set went into the shop a multitude of problems developed. The people there were extremely patient, understanding and sympathetic with me.

House rules were obviously broken in my favor. It was not necessary to hassle, argue or push to obtain excellent service.

My set was eventually returned in far better shape that it has ever been before. —D. H., Claremont.

About this-that

The famed Matterhorn in the Swiss-Italian Alps is self-destructing. As avalanches wear away its softer lower slopes, the mountain's upper pyramid acquires more of an overhang. Some day thousands of years from now the massive "horn" will topple.

Ann Landers

Spanking is not the answer

Dear Ann Landers: I am very sad about our dear little 3-year-old grandson. He has picked up some four-letter words which embarrass his parents. I'm sure he learned these words from them, since they argue a great deal and are both capable of some shamefully crude language.

Now they are applying a large wooden spoon to the child's backside every time he says them.

I have told my daughter and son-in-law to ignore the boy when he uses these nasty words because he does it to get a rise out of them.

They say I am wrong — that no child will continue to do something if he learns it will result in a painful paddling. Are they right and am I wrong? —K.G.

Dear K.G.: You are right and they are wrong. What your daughter and her husband don't understand is that children would rather be spanked than ignored. Obviously, your grandchild is not getting enough attention.

Children need models more than they need critics. Most youngsters learn verboten words from playmates. Apparently your grandson doesn't even need to leave the house.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I love each other very much, but he has been after me to join a "swingers club" in Indianapolis "just to see what it's like."

I'm afraid of what it might do to our marriage. He says it will improve it — that all married people need a few extra kicks. He claims if a couple really love each other "swinging" will not hurt their relationship.

Please tell me what you have heard from couples who went in for these "extra kicks"? Did it help? Did it hurt?

I'm a broad-minded person but this sort of thing seems very far out to me. —Muncie, Ind.

Dear Muncie: I have heard from several people who went in for "swinging." Most of the letters were from wives who said they were being divorced because those "extra kicks" lead to emotional involvements and bitter arguments.

Tell your husband to forget it. "Swinging" is dangerous, destructive, and has no positive aspects whatever.

Dear Ann Landers: God bless that man who wrote to praise his wife for all the things she does during the day. He found out what a remarkable woman he was married to when she had to go to the hospital for a hysterectomy and he took care of the house and kids for a week.

Are you sure that man isn't from another planet? I've been married to an ornery cuss for 47 years and he has yet to give me a compliment, a thank you, a Christmas present, or a card on my birthday. I never hear one word out of him unless he wants to give me hell for something. I must give HIM a compliment, however — he's the best fault-finder in the world.

How wonderful to learn that a husband somewhere appreciates his wife. Too bad I wasn't a better judge of people 47 years ago. —Lydia

Dear Lydia: You didn't ask for any advice so I won't give any, but my sympathy goes out to you. I just hope there are compensations — like loving children and grandchildren.

Joe Firman

Mr. Fix-it gets in a fix

Many years ago when the world was young, O Best Beloved, every town had certain key figures, talented in their line, generally popular, absolutely essential to the operation of the community.

There was the mailman, the butcher, a fat, jolly German in a straw hat (why were all the butchers German?), an Italian fruit peddler, the Irish cop, and more important than all of these combined, the town's Mr. Fix-it, a wry, witty, wrinkled, philosophical jack-of-all-trades, usually from some obscure Balkan country (talked with a strong accent and loved Mozart) who knew all there was to know about faulty lamps, screen doors, dripping faucets, broken toasters, erratic alarm clocks and reluctant water heaters.

The town's handyman was an authority on hedges and when to plant tulips; he was the last court on making kites and curing sciatica; he knew all about Mixmasters and broken windows and grandfather's clocks. He knew how to keep a dog from barking and what to do to a second baseman's glove that had been left out in the rain.

Alas, poor Mr. Fix-it. I knew him, Horatio . . . he is gone, vanished from the scene like the American Indian, the duckbill platypus and honest wrestling. Gone with his twinkling eye and curly mustache, his witty aphorisms, his homely homilies, his blue-veined skillful hands, his "Oh, pay what you think it's worth."

Today you get the plumber at $15.50 a washer (if you're lucky), or a repair man for a house call on a sagging screen door or reluctant floor lamp for $9 a look, or a pimply faced high school dropout with barely enough intelligence to tell a wrench from a screw driver, both of which he has left at the shop.

My wife discovered (you always "discover" them) one of these Old World genies not long ago, a man of infinite jest, etc., comfortably whiskered, promisingly leathery, all salty wit and humorous anecdote. One look at him, the battered hat and red bandana, and I said farewell to the thousand natural ills the home is heir to — rusty faucets, broken steps, inoperative doorbells.

"Fall to, old wizard!" I cried, "and let the Devil take the hindmost."

He fell to. Using my credit card at the local hardware store, he laid in a year's supply of nails, wire, wood, glass, brackets and heaven-knows-what-all. He unhinged a working door, sprang leaks in the cellar, warped the frame of the picture window, and crossed wires so artfully that South Claremont had a half-hour blackout.

"Man's born to trouble as the sparks fly upward," he opined, stroking his mustache.

"Really?" I said, applying the toe of my shoe to his Old World rear end and sending him careening into the traffic. "I'll try to remember that."

Mr. Fix-it. Gone but not forgotten. And good riddance.

Dr. Lamb

Count blessings of being slim

DEAR DR. LAMB — Why do doctors and nutritionists speak of weight control strictly in terms of calorie intake and calories used by exercise and work? I am an expert in absolutely nothing; however, by most casual observation and my own experience, calorie input has little to do with the weight of many individuals.

Metabolism and assimilation must be of greater importance than quantity or type of food. I have failed at every effort to gain weight. Even heavy exercise programs combined with high protein diets only result in stronger but stringier muscles without weight gain.

I know that heredity will be the first suggested reason for my problem which is partially true, but I have two brothers who are reasonably stout. Basically, I simply do not assimilate because of some deficiency in my digestive system. I had X rays of my digestive system and no doctor has ever discovered or been able to suggest any remedial action.

I'm sure I'm not a voice alone. Is there any answer for those of us unable to gain weight? I'm 5 feet 11 and weigh 145 pounds.

DEAR READER — You lucky fellow. Get down on your knees and thank God you have your "problem."

Failure to absorb food from the small intestine will prevent weight gain. We see this in medical problems that have a component of diarrhea or malabsorption. The calories have to get into the body before they can be used. That is not an important factor in most normal people, and I doubt it has anything at all to do with your efforts to gain weight.

Some patients lose weight because they lose calories in the urine. The most common example here is the severe diabetic losing sugar from the blood into the urine. In healthy people this is not a factor. The major balance is between calories in (absorbed) on one hand versus calories used in work and calories used to run your body even at rest (basal metabolism). When you take in more than you use for basal metabolism and work, you will store the calories as fat.

If the basal metabolism is low as in low thyroid state, even though the intake is small, the patient will gain weight. So, the basal metabolism is important in weight control. Individuals with good muscles (not muscles filled with fat) have higher metabolic levels than those with more body fat and less muscle.

Muscles contain surprisingly few calories. A whole pound of lean muscle contains only about 600 calories and 100 grams of protein. Over 70 per cent of its weight is water.

The type of exercise is what counts here. A program that gradually increases the load a muscle is contracted against will grow muscles. Progressive weight training is a good example. Strenuous exercises that don't involve weight loading the muscle will not increase its size. If you want muscles, not fat, I would suggest that you look into your exercise program rather than your calorie intake.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York N.Y. 10019. For information on exercise and muscles ask for The Health Letter number 1-10. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for mailing and costs.

Opening lead — 8 ♥

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

The Unlucky Expert looked carefully at the opening lead. That eight of hearts appeared to be the top of nothing. Our expert decided to rise with dummy's ace of hearts and falsecard with his queen.

Then he led a trump to his ace, a second trump back to the 10 and led the jack of hearts. East was pretty sure that his king of hearts would bite the dust but he saw no reason to hold it back. So he rose with it.

He was surprised and delighted when it won the trick and even more delighted when the queen of clubs lead produced three club trucks for the defense.

"I sure tried," said the unlucky expert, "but nothing succeeds for me."

He had made a valiant effort in the play, but if he had bid a trifle better he would have won the rubber. All he had to do would have been to raise his partner to three notrump. With honors in all suits, eight apparent tricks and no singleton he had no reason to insist on his suit.

BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Saturday, June 21, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Devote as much time as possible the next couple of days to active, enjoyable outdoor pursuits. Leave your worries at the office.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Benefits will come to you today, not so much through your efforts but because others will be willing to share with you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're very lucky at this time in dealings you'll have with partners or close associates. Be a team player.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Several persons you'll be in contact with this weekend will prove to be of help careerwise. What they promise, they can deliver.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Normally you're well-received, but the next few days your popularity will peak even higher. Looks like an active weekend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're in need of anything material or financial, check with relatives or members of your family first.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep a pencil and pad handy today. You're apt to come up with a flash of inspiration that has tremendous potential. Jot it down.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have a pleasant surprise in store because of something nice you did for another a while back. It pays to be a good guy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're extremely perceptive today. You should be able to detect things not discernible to others. Abide by your hunches.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) That opportunity you've been looking for to discuss something confidentially with a certain party will present itself today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your personality has some pluses today. You may even surprise yourself with the power you have over a group.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today and tomorrow can be very fortunate days for you where major goals are concerned. Conditions are shaping up in an unusual manner.

Your Birthday June 21, 1975

Through a mysterious chain of events you will enter into a beneficial alliance this year. Several close associates with power and influence will be acquired.

Woman, 30, is surrender-wise

Observed Honore de Balzac: "For a young man, a woman of 30 years holds an irresistible attraction. Younger girls have too many illusions. They're too inexperienced. The woman of 30 years knows all she needs to know about self-surrender. The younger girls yield. The woman of 30 years makes a deliberate choice."

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q. "George Washington camped at Valley Forge. How'd the place get its name?"

A. From Valley Forge Creek. And that was so called because one Isaac Potts in 1742 built a little ironworks there to take advantage of the water. Denizens referred to it as the valley forge.

Q. "HOW COME the people who run Hong Kong don't put in a good harbor with piers instead of forcing the ship captains to unload by lighter while moored offshore?"

A. Because they figure docked ships there couldn't weather those typhoons in the China Sea from July to October.

Q. "NAME the youngest U.S. vice president ever inaugurated."

A. John C. Breckinridge at 36. Oldest was Alben Barkley at 71.

Pilot Club sets backyard party

The Pilot Club of Pomona Valley will meet at the home of Mrs. James Ledbetter, 2448 Euclid Crescent, East, Upland for a backyard barbecue on Thursday at 7:15 p.m.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. Susanne Elzie, a former resident of Pomona who is here on vacation from her work with the Volunteer Missionary Service in Poza Rica, Veracruz, Mexico.

She will tell of her experiences of working with the missionaries in the field.

Mrs. Ledbetter will be assisted by Mrs. Morris McCrossen, Mrs. E. W. Reed, Miss Anne Wigley and Miss Ida Harmsen.

CDA holds installation

The joint installation of officers for Courts Our Lady of Fatima and Queen of Heaven, Catholic Daughters of America, was held at Upland Women's Clubhouse.

Breakfast slated by guild

Marytha Guild of First Presbyterian Church will sponsor a benefit breakfast Saturday from 7 to 11 a.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Honaker, 2775 N. Towne Ave., Pomona.

Proceeds will go for missions and specifically the following missionaries: John and Jean Undersood in Korea; Marjorie Metier, Sudan Interior; and Jerry Hinote, Sudan Interior. All are church members.

The breakfast is open to guests.

MRS. TERRY BRIDWELL

Bridwell, Parks rite read

Miss Pamela Ann Parks of Pomona and Terry Vincent Bridwell of Pomona were married in the First Church of God in Pomona.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Parks of Pomona and the son of Mr. Harry V. Bridwell were wed in a double-ring ceremony by Dr. Herschell Rice.

Honor attendant was Rebecca Sue Parks of Pomona. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Pamela Black of Santa Ana, Linda Payne of Pomona and MarshaParks of Riverside. Standing as best man was Tim Bridwell of Ontario. Ushers were Bruce Black of Ontario, Gregg Richards of Whittier, and Rod Payne of Pomona. Flower girls were Lisa Spangenbers and Margie Witherspoon. Candlelighters were Mitchell Spangler and Steve Spangler. Ring bearer was Michael Medby.

Following the rite, a reception was held in Claremont. The newlyweds will establish a home in Pomona.

Juniors assist D.B. youth

Young people living in Diamond Bar will have an opportunity to fill empty summer hours with work through the efforts of the Diamond Bar Junior Women's Club.

Mrs. Reida Buehler and Mrs. Barbara Norwood, cochairmen of the youth committee, are responsible for the Rent-A-Kid project of summer part time employment referral service.

Persons having odd jobs for boys and girls, 12 through 17, may call 595-3847 or 595-6966.

The education committee of the club will work with local and public libraries this summer and fall. They will be working on Tot Time, a summer preschool for Diamond Bar children, 3 through 5 years.

The mental health committee, with Mrs. Sharleen Miller as chairman, is planning a "Mother's Day Off" program for the summer. The program will include free babysitting for Diamond Bar mothers.

The Juniors will be saving pop tops from beverage cans for the training of a seeing eye dog for the blind. The Juniors request help from the community. Mrs. Dianne Fauret, 595-8570, is chairman for the project.

The special interest project for the club year will be the Bicentennial. Members will work with the Diamond Bar Women's Club on the project.

Information on club membership may be obtained by calling Mrs. Kathie Cademateri, 595-7678, membership chairman. The club will meet at 8:15 p.m. at Diamond Point II Swim Club on July 10.

Joyce Brothers

Didn't consult her

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: At the beginning of the last school semester, my husband and I decided we would take teaching jobs in separate town even though we know this would mean that during the school year, we'd be able to see each other only on weekends. His school is in another part of the state, so it would be impractical for him to come home during the week.

We talked it over and decided that this would work out because my mother could leave the home where she's been living alone and move in with me. This seemed like a perfect solution to her loneliness as she could have her own room and private bath. We really made our plans with this in mind and were rather shocked and hurt to discover that she didn't want to accept our invitation. Now, I'm a bit irritated because I'm all alone at night and I don't honestly know if either my husband or I would have accepted our jobs if we knew this was going to be the outcome. It's really silly because we could all save money and this was also part of our scheme. Do you think it would be wrong to pressure my mother on this matter? —T.P.

Dear T.P.: Yes, I definitely do. First of all, since apparently neither you nor your husband discussed your plans with your mother before you signed your contracts, it seems to me that you have no right to be upset or irritated because she prefers to remain in her own home. She may value her independence just as much as you and your husband value yours.

Your mother is not as unusual as you might imagine. A study of older widows revealed that 92 per cent wanted to make their own life and not depend on others, especially their children. Most anticipate trouble when they live with married offspring even when the children may be trying to do them a favor. Most don't want to give up the freedom of doing things in their own way. Also, even though they know they shouldn't interfere in their children's lives, they know they'll be tempted to anyway. Actually, 46 per cent of the 300 elderly widows interviewed said they liked living alone and 36 per cent stated that they found their lives freer and, in some respects, more rewarding than at any other time.

If you object to staying alone in the evenings, why don't you consider renting that extra room to a student. This would help bring in the extra money you and your husband planned on and wouldn't involve personal problems or pressures.

Apparently, more and more couples are trying to add to their family incomes by the arrangement you describe. Some professors who are trying this marriage of separation except for weekends find that the plan has proved successful in more ways than one. The long-distance marriages usually mean that both husband and wife have more to contribute when they do see each other, and that each looks forward to the weekends with special anticipation. With somewhat less time to spend with each other, the time becomes more precious and is used to greater advantage. Couples say they tend to do more things together on weekends and that their home life has taken on a more festive atmosphere.

You and your mother can relieve each other's loneliness during the week by an occasional dinner or a night out together. The important thing is that you each continue to respect each other's independence and share with each other on equal terms. Try to include her in events that will help to stimulate her intellectually and increase her interests in life. One of the problems of many older people is that they get bored and, too often, are automatically excluded from any intellectually challenging or stimulating pursuit.

Exercise helps lower extremities

CHICAGO (AP) — Physical fitness doesn't stop at the ankles. Feet benefit from exercise, too. After all, they carry around a heavy burden and are often cramped in close quarters inside shoes.

Feet can stand regular limbering up to strengthen and firm muscles and stimulate circulation.

Here are some easy-to-do exercises which take little time but will give you a good understanding. They come from Scholl Inc. here.

Standing barefoot, stretch up on toes, hold for a few seconds then lower heels to the floor. This builds firmness from toes to thighs.

Stand on a thick board or book and curl toes out around the edge, holding on with the balls of the feet. Lean forward and feel the pull through the toes and instep.

Sit down and place feet flat on the floor. Keeping soles firmly in place, raise the toes up. Spread toes apart, hold for a few seconds then press them closely together. Repeat several times.

To firm ankles, keep heels flat to floor but lift up the front of the foot. Roll heels back and forth to each side, keeping toes pointed upward.

Play toe games: in bare feet pick up pencils, marbles or other small objects with the toes. This activity will help limber up the arch, strengthen toes and ankles.

Shop for shoes in the afternoon, since feet tend to swell slightly as the day goes on. Be sure to have the salesperson measure both feet; they often differ in size.

The shoe should measure a half-inch longer than the foot but fit snugly at the heel and across the arch to prevent slipping.

Embassy party in Moscow a monumental quiz game

MOSCOW (AP) — "What's latest on Brezhnev's health?" "What's this about Kissinger coming to Moscow?"

The questions, speculation and rumors circulated around the crowded embassy ballroom faster than the drinks and hors d'oeurves.

This reception at one of the 98 embassies in Moscow is not a typical event in the Soviet capital's diplomatic social whirl.

Because non-Soviet residents are so starved for information about this country, they join the caviar-and-canape circuit to try to become informed more than to be wined and dined.

That's not surprising for another reason. Moscow's social scene is not noted for its dazzling parties, gourmet food and scintillating repartee, as in the case of Paris or Washington.

"You meet the same people, drink the same whiskey, eat the same food everywhere," sighed a diplomat's wife. "I find the conversations incredibly boring because there's nothing to talk about. It's grim beyond belief."

Earlier this year, the hottest topic of conversation was the state of Leonid I Brezhnev's health. Black-tie dinners, lunches and cocktail parties buzzed with the latest rumors — and often gave birth to new ones.

"As a woman, I've never felt so unwanted in male conversation," a diplomatic spouse complained. "Men ignored me because they're so desperate for any little kernels of information that other diplomats have. They ask, 'What's new?' And urgently hope they'll get some kind of answer."

Foreign news correspondents often are invited to diplomatic parties because they are regarded as good sources of information.

"Compared to the time and effort you have to put into it, the amount of information you get on the social circuit is just not that useful," said one diplomat.

But others disagree, maintaining that they learn a great deal from exchanging ideas with other diplomats and Soviet officials.

"The Soviets are much more forthcoming at these affairs than they used to be. There's a far more relaxed atmosphere," said one veteran diplomat. "They will say very little on such subjects as the health of Brezhnev, but they will — and do — express their opinions about international developments."

Mrs. Walter Stoessel, wife of the United States ambassador, added that mingling at social events "leads to much more rapport between Soviets and foreigners. If you want to promote good relations, the best way is breaking bread together."

According to experienced diplomats, middle-level Soviet officials are breaking bread with foreigners more than ever before. But that's not true of the top leaders.

Unlike Nikita S. Khrushchev, who loved to come to diplomatic soirees and usually took half the Politburo with him, Brezhnev and his colleagues stay away.

One seasoned diplomat recalled that Khrushchev also gave frequent Kremlin receptions and mingled with his foreign guests.

When the current Kremlin leadership entertains, it gathers in one corner of the room, while the guests are kept as far away as possible.

But despite the communication disadvantages, the Kremlin bashes usually have better food than other Soviet functions. The recent reception in honor of the 30th anniversary of the defeat of the Nazis, for example, featured crab, caviar, bananas and pineapples — delicacies not found in ordinary Soviet food stores.

The care and feeding of Soviet officials involves some very special problems for diplomatic hosts. A host often does not know how many Soviets will show up or who they will be until shortly before his social function.

A recent dinner at a Western embassy, in fact, had to be delayed an hour when 30 more Russians arrived than had been expected.

"They always say yes when they're invited, but they hate to be tied down," said one diplomat. "A Russian official once asked me, 'Why do you invite people to your parties two weeks in advance? At the time, it seems like a very good idea. But how do I know whether I'll feel like coming on that day?' It's irritating, but you have to live with it."

In this supposedly classless society, Soviet officials are also sticky about protocol, giving hostesses nightmares about which deputy minister is ranked higher, or whether a Communist party official, who has no formal rank, is in reality more important than a government official.

Adding to the perils of entertaining is the lack of variety of food and liquor. The diplomatic food store, where most foreigners shop, has a limited selection of both, and often runs out of items that hostesses are counting on for dinner that night.

Many embassies ship in food and wine from abroad.

The Chinese embassy, which has its own chef and raises much of its foodstuffs, has earned the reputation of serving the best food in town.

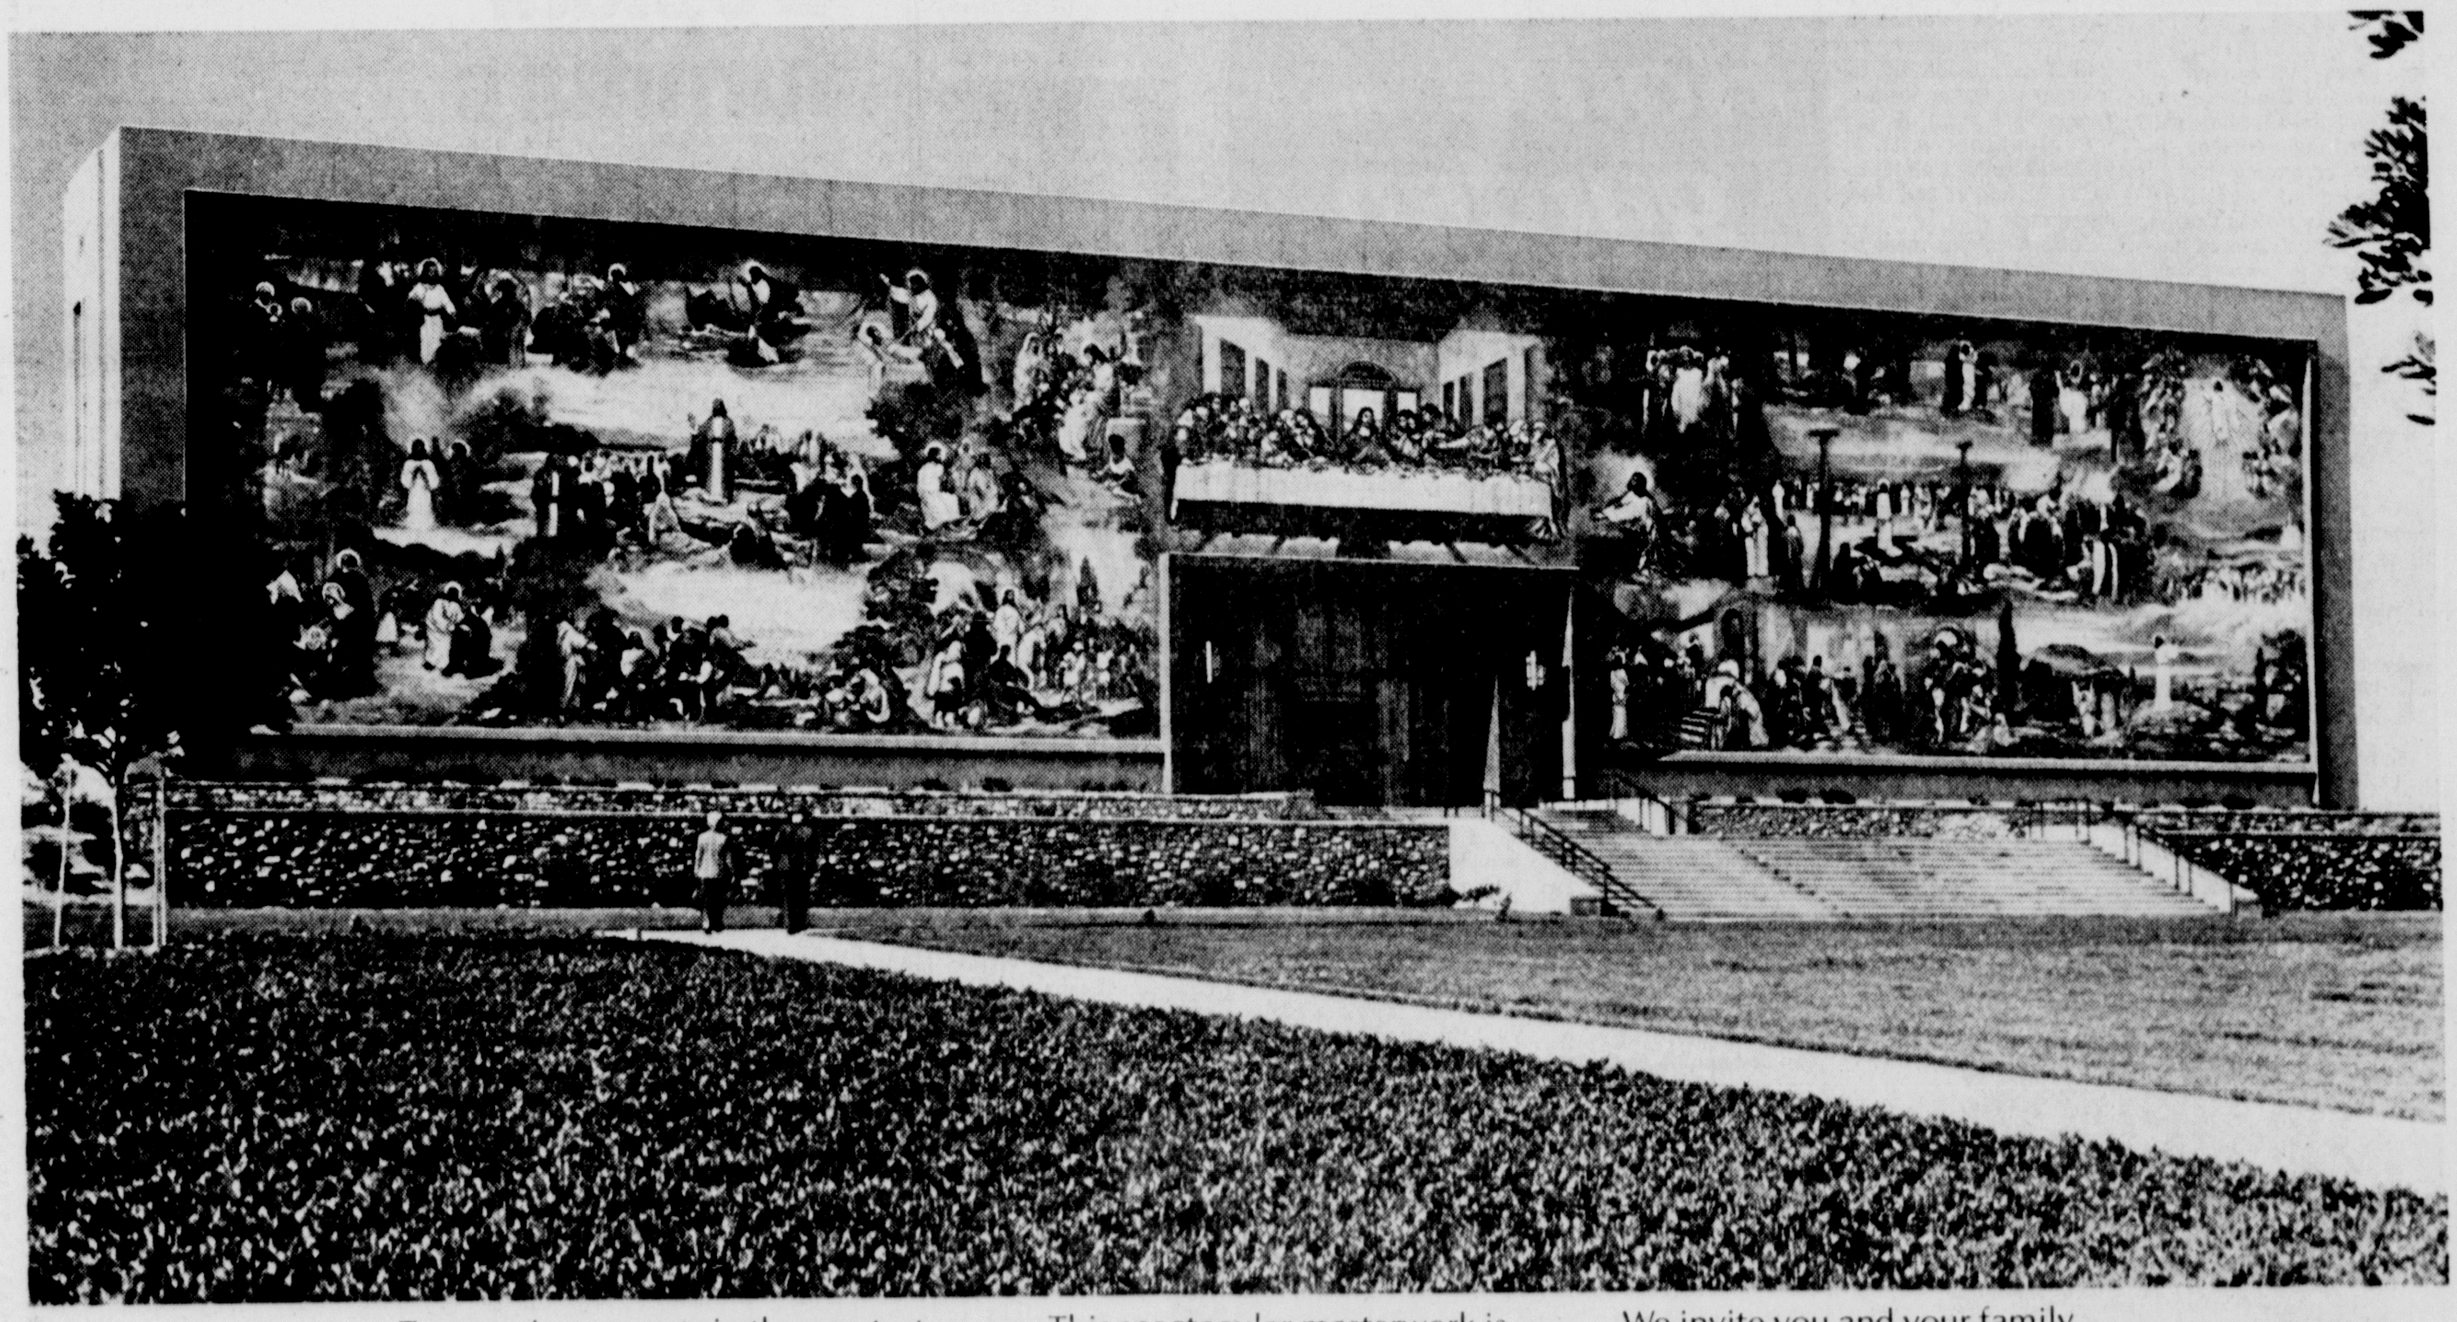
Perhaps because there are no society columnists here, no renowned party givers have emerged from the diplomatic corps, as they have in other world capitals.

Some ambassadors, however, have tried to be more original than others.

The Tunisian ambassador, whose embassy in the former mansion of the late secret police chief Lavrenti Beria, is considered the one who gives the best New Year's Eve parties.

The Venezuelans give good carnival parties. U.S. Ambassador and Mrs. Stoessel show old movies at their lovely old mansion-residence, Spasso House.

You are invited to the dedication of a lifetime.



Twenty-six moments in the greatest lifetime ever lived are re-created in glowing hand-set Venetian glass, in the magnificent new Life of Christ Mosaic.

This spectacular masterwork is 170 feet long and 34 feet high, and is the world's largest religious mosaic. More importantly, it is an inspirational shrine to the man who led the most inspirational life of all.

We invite you and your family to join us and our honored guests for the formal dedication ceremonies this Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

The Life of Christ Mosaic
Dedication, June 22, 1975, at 2:30 p.m.

YOUNG OLD ONIONS — Sounds confusing, but that's the case. The onions are old — left in the ground after harvest last year by grower Della Young (that's right). She said she planted squash over the onions this year while they were dormant, but they sprang to life and pushed up through squash vines. Biggest of the six she dug up was 8 inches in diameter.

Gardeners check list

An experience for youngsters while school is out is to plant and grow their own summer flower garden. There are many easy-to-grow annuals available in local nurseries, including marigolds, zinnias, dwarf dahlias, periwinkle, cockscomb, alyssum, lobélia and a host of hybrid petunias.

Keep after snails and slugs. The use of bait or pellets at regular intervals will keep your garden free of these pests.

For problem garden areas where grass won't grow, ground covers can enhance the beauty of your property. Consider them for sloping banks or in areas that are difficult to reach with a mower.

Shop for hanging baskets in nurseries. You'll find blooming and foliage plants already cascading their beauty from on high. These can be taken home and enjoyed instantly; they are unique decorations for porch or patio.

For your vacation checklist: include a list of specific instructions for your garden care while you're away. This will save time and effort, and will help insure that upon your return, the garden and lawn will be just as you want them to be.

Brighten your garden with a few pots of blooming Geraniums, Pelargoniums, Marguerites and Transvaal Daisies.

Bloomed-out Delphiniums should be cut back within a few inches of the ground. They will grow a new top and bloom again, later in summer.

Hearing Aid by MAICO

A specially tuned directional microphone system, found only in a new MAICO eyeglass hearing aid, may help you hear more clearly and at a greater distance in the presence of competing sounds than ever before. Thanks to a directivity pattern-used previously in microphones for TV broadcasting — you may hear more comfortably with less strain and confusion. MAICO factory tests showed that sounds entering the Mark 140 from the front received significantly more amplification than other sounds around the aid, compared to models not having the same directivity pattern. With many competing sounds around you more effectively reduced, especially those sounds at the sides and rear, you may find you can hear sounds from the front more clearly and at a greater distance. The Southern California Gladiolus Society will present its annual show Saturday and Sunday, June 21 and 22, at the Los Angeles State and County Arboretum in Arcadia. In addition to the display of hundreds of gladiolus spikes exhibited by members coming from as far away as San Diego and Sacramento, the show will feature competitions in flower arranging and a showing of seedling gladiolus by Edwin Frazee of Oceanside, one of the largest growers of gladiolus in the country.

A "shine and bloom" contest is being sponsored by the horticultural committee of the Claremont Bicentennial Celebration which extends to July 1976.

Committee Chairman Jolly Batcheller suggested that the ideas be practical, relatively inexpensive and within the reach of the average citizen or business firm.

Contestants will be divided into 5-12, 13-15, 16-20, 21-50, and 51 and older age groups.

Contest entries must be submitted to the Chamber of Commerce office by June 30.

Weeds in garden?—No! On dinner table?—Yes!

There are wild plants growing in gardens, vacant lots, and other untended places which can be safely and acceptably brought to the table.

Authority for this statement is Dr. Leonid Enari, senior biologist at the Los Angeles State and County Arboretum in Arcadia who will teach a class on the subject starting Monday, and lasting until July 28, in the Arboretum lecture hall. During the course, which will meet for six weeks every Monday from 7 to 10 p.m., students will study by means of lectures, workshops and field trips approximately 50 species of plants commonly regarded as weeds but having edible foliage, roots, tubers, seeds, or fruits.

A six-week, intermediate and advanced course on bonsai given by Ben Suzuki of the Akebono Bonsai Society is the second course for adults to be given this summer at the Arboretum. Also meeting from 7 to 10 p.m. on Mondays, the course will involve the student in the ancient art of growing miniature trees through specialized instruction in a workshop atmosphere.

Students may register for the courses at the first meeting on Monday, June 23, at 7 p.m. Both courses are sponsored by Pasadena City College. Class size will be limited.

Homeowners Q. and A.

Q. — Can you give me instructions on adding a bathroom to our house?

A. — Not even if this column occupied the entire page. It's an involved process that requires skill, not merely knowledge. You'd have to install water pipes, drains and vents, among other things. Even if you could handle it, you'd probably find that it would be a violation of a local ordinance for anyone but a licensed plumber to undertake the job.

New U.S. attic fan standards

New U.S. government housing standard for powered attic space ventilators require uniform tests and bar "free air" ratings.

Thermostat - controlled fans which remove excess attic heat now must be labeled by Home Ventilating Institute (HVI) uniform testing and rating procedures to meet new standards of the Federal Housing Administration, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

These and related attic ventilation standards appear in 1975 revisions to the FHA Minimum Property Standards for single family and multi-family dwellings, which apply to all new private or public housing covered by federal insurance or subsidy. The revisions are now in effect.

Trees offer more than just shade

To help make summer a little cooler and more comfortable, plant a shade tree or two — suggests the California Association of Nurserymen.

SWEET GUM
(Liquidambar styracifluea)

Summer shade trees are in good supply — in great variety — for planting right now.

Whether evergreen or deciduous, trees play an important role in the environment. In addition to providing outstanding beauty, shade and climate control, trees trap dirt particles from the air, give oxygen for human consumption — and serve as a natural "filtration system." Trees also reduce sound and lessen city noises that tend to fray one's nerves.

Nurseries offer trees best-suited for local conditions and climate. This simplifies the selection process — but a further consideration is choosing the right tree for the right place. Some shade trees may overgrow their bounds, unless you plan for them. If you have a restricted garden area, it would be best to plant a modest-growing deciduous Purple Leaf Plum or an evergreen Carolina Cherry. Evergreen Ash or deciduous Silver Maple — both excellent shade trees — would ultimatley overgrow the area and cause more headaches than beauty.

It's easy to plant the right tree in the right place. Your nurseryman can assist you by recommending the varieties of trees that will fulfill your desires. You'll be surprised over the number of choices available. The best part is that the tree choices are as beautiful as they are utilitarian. In a wide, open area the Southern Magnolia is a breathtaking sight — as is the distinctive, deciduous Chinese Pistache, which colors-up spectacularly in fall.

Plantsmen have introduced hybrids that have special characteristics. The fall-foliage colors of such hybrid Liquidambers as Palo Alto, Afterglow, and Burgundy have individual characteristics which defy description; the brilliance of color in hybrid Locusts is a sight to behold.

WORLD'S BIGGEST? — This Sequoia tree in the Sierra Nevada is challenging the General Sherman Sequoia for the title of the world's biggest living thing. This tree, called Bull Buck, is 258 feet tall and 85 feet around.

World's biggest tree
Gen. Sherman challenged

FRESNO (AP) — Everyone thought the General Sherman Sequoia tree was the biggest tree in the world until somebody took Bull Buck's measurements. Now, they're not so sure.

Buck is a little bigger around the middle, but Sherman is taller and has a bigger head.

So the American Forestry Association, which keeps records on such things, is arranging to have a survey team measure both trees in the Sierra this fall to decide which should have the world's title.

The surveyors probably will also measure the General Sherman's neighbor in Sequoia-Kings Canyon National Parks—the General Grant Sequoia. The Grant tree, listed as slightly smaller than the Sherman in past measurements, still claims a fair share of fame as the nation's official Christmas Tree.

The Bull Buck Sequoia, in a grove of fairly inaccessible giant Sequoias near Yosemite National Park, wasn't considered in the running until a survey crew checked its dimensions last fall.

Those statistics showed Buck's 85-foot circumference at chest height beat the Sherman by two feet. However, the Sherman stands 14 feet taller—stretching 272 feet into the sky.

The final measurement — the crown spread or size on top — again had the Sherman slightly ahead, and it kept the over-all title in a complex compilation of the various factors. various factors.

But the forestry association wants measurements made of both by a single survey team to provide a more uniform comparison.

"There's a lot of room for error in measuring these trees," explained Steve Beck, information officer for Sierra National Forest, home of Bull Buck.

"Even a minor error in measurement can make a big difference in something this big."

Officials at Kings Canyon-Sequoia parks about 75 miles south say they are willing to have experts compare their trees with Buck.

"As long as they have a blueribbon committee to make the measurements, that should certainly clear the record, said Robert Smith, acting assistant superintendent.

None of these huge trees, each perhaps 4,000-years-old and containing up to 50,000 cubic feet of lumber, is in the running for the title of world's oldest or tallest tree, however.

A redwood on California's north coast is considered the tallest at 364 feet and a Sun Tree on Taiwan reportedly has been around the longest—an estimated 6,000 years.

Twenty-one of 31 of the highest mountain peaks in the world are in the Himalayas.

3 congressmen now draw state pensions

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Three members of Congress have turned 60 and are drawing California pensions totalling $19,405 a year from their former state jobs, the state controller's office says.

U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., gets $14,208 a year. He turned 60 last year and became eligible Jan. 1 for the pension for his eight years service as state controller from 1959 to 1967.

Rep. George E. Danielson, D-Los Angeles, draws $3,000 a year from the Legislators' Retirement System, and Rep. John E. Moss, D-Sacramento, gets $2,197 a year.

Moss served four years in the state Assembly and Danielson had a four-year term in the state Senate.

A number of former California lawmakers, who are no longer in public service, have qualified for pensions upon turning 60, and one, former Assemblyman John P. Quimby, gets $847.94 a month through disability.

Former Gov. Ronald Reagan, who turned 60 while in office, started drawing $1,083.48 a month after he left office Jan. 6.

A spokesman for the controller said state law allows the pensions, based on a formula of age, service and type of job held. If a pensioner returns to state service, his salary would be deducted from the pension, the spokesman said.

OK $343,137 for Ruchell Magee trial

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The sum of $343,137 to pay for the Ruchell Magee murder trial is in a bill on Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s desk.

By a 70-0 vote Monday, the state Assembly gave the Senate-passed bill final approval.

The funds would be in addition to $77,980 previously paid to Marin County. State law allows the state to reimburse counties for costly trials.

Under the bill, the extra appropriation would cover costs incurred by Marin County in two murder and kidnaping trials stemming from the August 1971 Marin County courthouse shootout.

Magee's first trial ended with a hung jury. His second trial, concluded in January, resulted in a life sentence for kidnaping.

The bill is by Sen. Peter Behr, R-Tiburon.

It is SB 104.

'Nice Guy' on streak

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Before they began the week with three straight victories over Houston, the Los Angeles Dodgers had the poorest team batting average in the National League.

"Maybe we've had our one slump for the year," first baseman Steve Garvey said Thursday night after he and Jim Wynn each collected four safeties in a 14-hit attack that beat San Diego, 4-1, for the Dodgers' fourth straight victory. "The 14 hits should do us a lot of good."

The National League MVP's 4-for-5 effort, in which he came to the end of a string of six straight hits, came one night after he stood up in a clubhouse meeting in Los Angeles and spoke about a newspaper article in which some teammates were quoted as being resentful of Garvey's "nice guy" image.

"Steve got up and said his piece—that's all there was to it," Wynn said Thursday night. "Tonight, he showed everybody that he had just one thing in mind and that was to play baseball.

"I think he proved that once you get on that field, you should let nothing worry you."

Except for Wynn, none of the Dodgers would discuss either the Wednesday night clubhouse meeting or the article which appeared in the San Bernardino Sun.

The Dodgers' 14 hits and the relief pitching of Mike Marshall helped lefthander Doug Raug (6-6) break a personal five-game losing streak and win for the first time since May 10.

Loser Randy Jones, 9-4, who allowed 11 hits but only two runs before retiring after eight innings, and reliever Danny Frisella, tagged for two runs in the ninth, were the Dodgers' victims.

"I wasn't tiring and I wanted to stay in, but it was the right move," he said of manager Walter Alston's decision to bring in Marshall with the score 2-1 and the tying run at second with one out in the eighth. Marshall retired the final five batters in a row to gain his fourth save.

"Mike is close to being where he was last season, stuffwise and controlwise," Alston said of the ace fireman who was laid up for six weeks recently with a pulled muscle in his left side.

Ron Cey and Steve Yeager broke a scoreless tie with runscoring singles off Jones in the sixth inning to send the Padres on the way to their third straight loss.

The Padres have scored one run in each of the three games and manager John McNamara was so distressed by Thursday night's performance that he scheduled a 10 a.m. workout Friday for all the Padres except the pitchers.

"We've come a long way in one year," McNamara said. "When we would lose a game last season, we were encouraged if we had played respectably. This year, we expect to win and we're upset when we don't. I think the fans feel the same way."

One of the four Padre hits Thursday night was a run-scoring, sixth-inning single by Bobby Tolan, who extended his hitting streak to six games.

The Padres and Dodgers have broken even in six meetings this season as they await Friday night's second match of the current four-game series. Brent Strom, 0-1, is to oppose Dodger righthander Don Sutton, 11-5.

Coggins traded to Yanks

MONTREAL — Rich Coggins is back in the American League again.

The former Garey High star was sold by the Montreal Expos to the New York Yankees, announced the Expos Thursday.

Coggins, who came to the National League Expos last winter from the Baltimore Orioles in a five-player deal, saw limited action this season due to an early illness.

In 13 games with Montreal this season, Coggins had a .270 batting average.

Before coming to Montreal along with pitchers Dave McNally and Bill Kirkpatrick, the left-hand hitting outfielder had a .282 lifetime batting average in three years in the major leagues.

His best season was in 1973, when he hit .319 in 110 games with the Orioles.

The purchase price of Coggins' contract was not known, but it was believed to be for the waiver fee of $20,000.

Rich was hampered with an unknown illness during the spring and returned to his home in Pomona for tests. It was finally diagnosed as a hyper-thyroid condition at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

He returned to Montreal's active list on May 22 and immediately went four-for-nine at the plate in his first two appearances, which included one double and one triple.

He went 6-for-29 before he was sent to the Expos minor league club in Memphis last Sunday, making room for Nate Colbert, who was obtained by the Expos from the Detroit Tigers.

Chacon in tough battle

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Bobby Chacon quit college to become a full-time fighter and now faces two examinations tougher than any he went up against in the classroom.

The 23-year-old from Sylmar, Calif., seeks to defend his World Boxing Council featherweight championship tonight against Ruben Olivares of Mexico City, the only man who has beaten him.

Chacon must also battle the scales, for making the 126-pound limit has become increasingly difficult. Three days ago he went into seclusion to shed five pounds and it's possible he could do it. But will the effort debilitate him too much for the 15-rounds of boxing?

"If I win, I'll have one more fight as a featherweight and then become a lightweight," says Chacon who attended Cal State Northridge and wants to resume his education when his ring career ends.

Olivares, 27, stopped Chacon in nine rounds on June 23, 1973, and declares, "I want to win a fourth title for Mexico."

The hard hitting Olivares twice has been the world bantamweight champion when he could make 118 and once was the 126-pound champion. He has no trouble making the weight saying, "I am a natural featherweight."

He does figure that Chacon will have trouble and objected to the 10:30 a.m. PDT weight-in for the Forum battle, explaining, "That is to his advantage. He will have time to make the weight if he misses and then have a chance to get his strength back."

Olivares asked that they be weighed at noon.

Chacon boasts a 26-1 record with 24 knockouts. Olivares is 77-5-1 and stopped 70 opponents including the current champion.

They go into the ring at 9 p.m. Should Chacon fail to make the weight, the fight continues but, should he win, the title would be declared vacant. Olivares can become the WBC king with the victory regardless of Chacon's weight.

"I've never missed weight yet," the champion said while admitting it was becoming increasingly difficult to reach 126.

He won the vacant WBC featherweight title by stopping Alfredo Marcano of Venezuela on Sept. 7, 1974. He successfully defended by stopping Papelero Estrada of Mexico in the second round last March 1.

Olivares has fought 10 title fights, winning seven and losing three. He could become only the second man in boxing to regain two titles—the other being Emile Griffith.

Arnie's 69 isn't too shabby

MEDINAH, Ill. (AP) — There's the old king, Arnold Palmer, up there with the fuzz-faced kids. And the guys who are supposed to win it are scrambling, sweating, beefing and, in one case, even threatening to blow the joint.

The 75th U.S. Open Golf Championship is off to a soggy, steaming and surprising start. Maybe things will get better in today's second round.

"It's as good as the good old days, even better," said a very pleased Palmer, a rejuvenated war horse of 45 seeking lost glories. "I felt I had charge of the golf course. I would like three more days just like it."

Palmer was the only one of golf's stars among the sub-par leaders after fashioning a steady 69—"not sensational but not bad, either," as he described it—over Medinah's rain-soaked 7,032 yards. Par is 71.

He was tied with three others, including an Englishman. They trail a pair of freckleface youngsters, Tom Watson and Pat Fitzsimons, tied for the lead with 67s, and a 10-year tour veteran, Jim Weichers, who never has won a pro tournament, next at 68.

Palmer, looking fitter and more confident than he has in years, was asked how it felt to be running ahead of his chief rivals with only a couple of kids and an outsider in front.

"Kids win golf tournaments, too," he said. "They're all golfers. There are a lot of them and they're all tough. Besides, you can bet some of the older guys will be up there before the weekend is over."

Palmer was tied at 69 with rangy Peter Oosterhuis, the best player in Britain, Grier Jones and Lanny Wadkins, the latter another of the neophites digging for the tour's $9 million in gold. The only other sub-par shooter was Ben Crenshaw, 23, who was alone at 70.

Jack Nicklaus, a 6-1 favorite to make this his 16th major tournament victory, shot a 72 and said, "I hit fliers on every other shot because the fairways were soft and hadn't been cut. There were some awkward situations out there."

Tom Weiskopf and Johnny Miller, who barely missed putts on the final hole in losing this spring's dramatic Masters to Nicklaus, both skied to 75 and came off the course with smoke pouring from their ears.

And it wasn't all from the day's cauldron 95-degree heat and sweltering humidity.

Notoriously quick to anger, Weiskopf got his dander up when he received an unfavorable ruling on the eighth hole and seemed to become more incensed as his round progressed.

After reaching the clubhouse, he cleaned out his locker and began taking resolute steps toward the U.S. Golf Association headquarters. "I've had enough," he fumed. "Im going home."

A couple of friends and his wife, Jeanie, intercepted him and cooled him down. Weiskopf agreed to continue—under personal protest.

What happened was that on the 205-yard eighth, Weiskopf flew his tee shot over the green onto an area that had been badly botched by rains and spectator traffic. The ball landed in an indentation, resembling a tire track, and Weiskopf insisted he was entitled to relief.

Sandy Tatum, chairman of the rules and tournament committee, disagreed. He said the indentation was part of the natural character of the course.

So Weiskopf had to play it. He hit his next shot over the green, took three from the edge and wound up with a double bogey five, erasing his two-underpar score to that point.

"I had no heart for it after that," Weiskopf said later. "It was an unfair ruling," said Oosterhuis, who tried vainly to talk the officials out of their ruling. "Tom should have got a lift."

A double bogey—just one of several nightmares for the blond sensation of the winter tour—also plagued Miller, but it came on the 18th. He finished bogey-par-double bogey and was so upset friends thought he might wrap his putter around one of Medinah's plentiful oaks.

"I just finished lousy," he said. "I hate to finish bad. On the 18th I half-buried a ball in the trap, hit a spectator in the head and just played lousy. It was very disheartening."

He complained that the USGA had failed to mow the practice green and, when he got on the course, it was like playing two different courses. "It was like a municipal course," he added. "I three-putted the first hole. I got off to a bad start and then I struggled my guts out to keep above water."

South Africa's Gary Player, a former Open winner and one of the favorites here, shot a 75. Defending champion Hale Irwin shot a 74 and was equally unhappy. But he found another source for discontent.

"The long waits, they were terrible," he said. "It took us 5½ hours to play the round. It's awful when you have to lie down and wait. There's just too much golf course and too many players...

"It is the slowest, hottest, most frustrating and most unexciting Open I can remember."

Fitzsimons and Watson, a couple of hearty lads of Irish descent, got out early and were sitting in the clubhouse with their 67s and a nice lunch while the rest of the field struggled in the afternoon heat.

They weren't mad at anybody.

Fitzsimons, a refreshing youngster of 23 from Salem, Ore., was at first was financed by his mother on the tour but later received the support of grass growers in his native Oregon.

He responded by winning the Los Angeles Open earlier this year, shooting a 275 that tied the record set by Ben Hogan in 1946.

East best in N.L.

Remember when the Dodgers used to advertise the Wild, Wild West?

It wasn't long ago when the National League West could claim the honor of being baseball's toughest division.

But not any longer.

It's no accident why the Dodgers have a losing record against their Eastern opponents while they enjoy a big margin over the West.

All of a sudden, the East is stronger.

Only the Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds deserve any merit among the Western clubs. San Francisco, San Diego, Atlanta and Houston are only pretenders as contenders.

But five of six Eastern teams figure to remain in the pennant race all the way. Only the young Montreal Expos appear to be outclassed.

It used to be the big stars played in the West. Obviously, Hank Aaron and Willie Mays led the way for years.

Because of the drop in quality and the loss of some of the big names, the Western teams are not the same attractions at Dodger Stadium as in past years.

Not even the fading San Francisco Giants create much of a stir when they play the Dodgers.

At least National League fans can be delighted the struggle between the Dodgers and Reds should last for the entire season to keep things humming here.

• • •

The Angels certainly deserve applause for the way they keep baseball fans informed on what is going on elsewhere in sports. The message board at Anaheim Stadium is much more informative than its counterpart at Dodger Stadium.

While most of the attendance talk has centered around the Dodgers drawing three million, the crowd totals are also impressive at Anaheim.

The Angels should reach about 1,400,000 at their present rate.

It's a big year around Southern California. The amazing San Diego Padres should even surpass last year's attendance total, which shocked everybody.

Notes from here and there:

John Scolinos hasn't received the proper recognition for serving as the coach of the U.S. Collegiate All-Stars in the series against the Japanese All-Stars. The news releases and publicity of the series centers on USC's Rod Dedeaux, who is the series manager. But Scolinos actually runs the team on the field.

Now that Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is in the fold, when will the Lakers announce ticket prices are going up? While it remains to be seen whether Jabbar can lead the Lakers to a championship, it's a safe bet the Forum has solved its attendance woes with his addition.

Baseball stars clash at Chino

Thirty-one of the top high school baseball players in the valley will converge on Chino High's diamond tonight when the Cowboys host the fifth annual Pomona Valley High School All-Star Baseball Game.

The game pits the North All-Stars, coached by Damien High's Matt Kolodge, against the South All-Stars, skippered by Nogales High's Mike Cook.

Game time is scheduled for 8 p.m.

Pitching may be the key to tonight's contest — which is actually only the third time players from the entire valley are competing.

The probable starter for the North will be Charter Oak High's Brian Harrison, who was an All-Montview League first team selection this past season.

Cook has a choice of starting pitchers. The five candidates include Mike Medeiros and Brent Jetton of Montclair, Mike Coppess and Keith Mundee of Chino, and Ken Czarnecki of Walnut.

Jetton was an All-San Antonio League first teamer as a pitcher with a 7-2 league record. Medeiros was also an All-SAL first team selection, but as an infielder. Coppess made the second team in the all-league picks as a pitcher.

Kolodge will also have a lot of backup on the mound with Royal Oak's Matt Barrow, Alta Loma's Mike Walters and Pomona's Mike Forsyth.

The South appears to be the favorite in the game, since it seemingly has just a little more potential power offensively.

The North lost some of its offensive strength when Bonita's Harold Drake and Alta Loma's Tom Bright signed professional baseball contracts, and Royal Oak pitcher Bob Cochran left earlier this week to compete in a semi-pro summer league in Boulder, Colo.

The Yankees also lost another player when Claremont High's Rich Tullis tore ligaments in his knee last weekend in an American Legion game with Claremont Post 78. He's due to be operated on Sunday.

Potential power hitters for the South include Nogales High's Sam Perez and John Ekman, Garey's Robbie Franklin, Rowland's Jim Ruhland and Chaffey's Jay Rogina.

Ekman was the Most Valuable Player in the Montview League this past season, posting a batting average of .348. Ruhland also carried a hefty bat for Rowland, finishing league play with an impressive .447 average.

Franklin was the San Antonio League's first-team utility man with a .324 average.

Supplying the power for the North will probably be Charter Oak outfield Robbie Ehlenburg, Claremont High first baseman Greg Thompson and Damien High outfielder Dan Monroe.

Royal Oak outfielder Ken Gabriel could be the sparkplug of the team since he led the Hacienda League in hitting this past season with a very impressive .457 batting average.

The remainder of the North lineup includes Claremont's Tim Helton, Damien's Bob DeBolt and John Pignotti, Upland's Jeff Martin, Webb's Wally Pitts, Bonita's Jerry Osborne and San Dimas' Jerry Baird.

The rest of the South squad includes Nogales' Ron Gomez, Chaffey's Joe Bruno, Ontario's Tony Martinez and Dave Barrozo, Chino's John Lusk and Ontario Christian's John Veenendaal.

Scolinos eager for Japan series

John Scolinos, Cal Poly's Hall of Fame baseball coach, is looking forward to his duties of coaching the U.S. Collegiate All-Stars against the Japanese during the next week.

Scolinos' team will open the seven-game series Saturday in an 1 p.m. at USC's Dedeaux Field. After a 4 p.m. contest on Sunday, the two clubs will travel to Omaha, Neb. for three games Tuesday through Thursday nights. The series returns to USC on Saturday, June 28 (7 p.m.) and Sunday, June 29 (4 p.m.).

"It's really nice," Scolinos said about coaching 19 of the top amateur players in the U.S. "It's amazing to watch these guys in practice. They're so big and strong."

Scolinos was given the honor of coaching the U.S. team in recognition of being recently inducted to the Coaches' Hall of Fame by the American Association of Baseball Coaches.

In his 28 years as a head coach at Pepperdine and Cal Poly, Scolinos has compiled a 675-508 record.

"Scolinos' record currently places his third among active coaches," said USC Coach Rod Dedeaux, the series chairman. "His outstanding record made his the top choice for the job."

Scolinos is happy the U.S. squad is from 11 different schools.

"It gives our team more diversity," he said. "I know the Japanese prefer it that way."

Two of his own Cal Poly players — catcher Jim Pryor and pitcher Vic Bernal — are included on the team.

Some of the top names include Steve Kemp (USC), Dennis Littlejohn (USC), Pete Redfern (USC), Mike Scott (Pepperdine), Jim Watson (Cal State L.A.), Tom Ritz (Cal State L.A.) and Floyd Bannister (Arizona State).

Scolinos intends to start Redfern on the mound Saturday followed by Bannister on Sunday.

"Our team looks good," Scolinos said after watching an one-sided 20-0 exhibition win over a team of high school stars Wednesday. "We have some power and good pitching but we know the Japanese will be tough."

This is the fourth year of the series. The U.S. has won two of first three series.

The series is locally sponsored by the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Fight slated— at Olympic

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Rafael Herrera, former world bantamweight champion from Mexico City, and his countryman Famoso Gomez will battle in a 10-round fight July 5 at the Olympic Auditorium.

Mrs. Aileen Eaton has announced the Herrera-Gomez fight which will be part of a triple headliner. Gomez currently is the No. 6 ranking featherweight in the world. Herrera is a top rated bantamweight having beaten Danny Lopez and Bert Nabalatan in recent fights.

Famosito Gomez, bantamweight brother of Famoso, will fight Fernando Cabanela of the Philippines in a second 10-rounder and Mexico's No. 1 bantam-weight contender Eliseo Cosme will fight Alberto Davila of Los Angeles who is 16-1.

GOING FOR RECORD — Tim Shaw breaks his own world record in the 400 meter freestyle with a time of 3:53.95 during the trials at Long Beach Thursday afternoon.

U.S. sets swim pace

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — America's young swimmers are setting a pace of a world record a day at the Amateur Athletic Union's National World Championship trials.

The opening session of the five-day trials produced a men's 200 meter mark by Bruce Furniss.

And the second day Thursday Furniss helped push Tim Shaw to a new record in the 400 freestyle.

While Furniss set the record in the 200 meters during qualifying in the morning Wednesday and broke it again at night in the finals, Shaw was well off the record in qualifying but came back to take nearly a second off his own world record in the finals Thursday night.

The three minutes, 54.69 seconds by Shaw bettered the 17-year-old Long Beach youth's own time of 3:53.95 he set in the AAU national championships last summer.

"I felt really good," said Shaw who went directly from the trials to his high school graduation ceremonies.

"I swam the race the way I wanted to swim it," he added. "My stroke felt a little off, but I really felt good."

with a time of 1:58.03 for the first 200 meters and finished with a faster 1:55.92 to overhaul Furniss, an 18-year-old from Santa Ana, Calif., who led for a time but finished second with a clocking of 3:55.40 that is the third fastest ever after the two world record times.

"I wasn't aware of how fast I went out, and didn't really think about it," Shaw said of his record pace. "I just did the best I could and it turned out right."

Shirley Babashoff of Mission Viejo, Calif., this country's best women freestyle swimmer, broke her own listed world record in the 200 meter freestyle with a time of 2:02.54. It was only enough for a new American record, however, as her listed mark of 2:02.94 had already been bettered by the pending record of 2:02.27 by Kornelia Ender of East Germany.

Valerie Lee, also of Mission Viejo, was second at 2:03.58.

The top two finishers in each of the events, running at the rate of about five finals a day through Sunday, qualifies for the United States team for the World Championships July 18-27 at Cali, Colombia.

Qualifying is scheduled today in the men's 1,500 meter freestyle with Shaw the defending national AAU champion. Finals for the 1,500 will be held Saturday.

In women's competition today's featured event was sure to be the 400 freestyle with Miss Babashoff, the world record holder at 4:15.77, going against former record holder Heather Greenwood of Fresno, Calif.

Indianapolis gets 1980 NCAA finals

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C. (AP) — The Division 1 basketball committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association has done its job. The next move is up to the NCAA executive committee to approve recommended sites for basketball championship tournament competition through 1977.

That should come in August in Chicago during a special economic conference. Tom Scott of Davidson, finishing his sixth year as chairman of the basketball committee, will present the recommendations to the executive group in Chicago. No hitches are likely.

Butler University was approved as host school for the 1980 national finals, March 22 and 24 at 17,500-seat Market Square Arena in Indianapolis.

Finals through 1979 had been set previously, starting with Philadelphia on 1976. In order after that come Atlanta, St. Louis and Salt Lake City.

March 13 first round games in 1976 will be played in Charlotte, N. C.; Providence, R. I., in the East; Dayton, Ohio, and South Bend, Ind., in the Mideast; Lawrence, Kan., and Denton, Tex., in the Midwest; and Albuquerque, N. M., and Eugene, Ore., in the West.

Previously announced 1976 regional finals are set for March 18 and 20 in Greensboro, N. C.; Baton Rouge, La.; Louisville and Los Angeles. The winners play in Philadelphia March 27 and 29.

Regional finals for 1977 were awarded Thursday to Maryland, Kentucky and Brigham Young, with Oklahoma City the tentative Midwest host. This should be cleared next week.

The 1977 first round host teams will be North Carolina State and Penn in the East; Indiana and Louisiana State in the Mideast; Arizona and Idaho State in the West; and Creighton and a school to be selected in the Midwest.

The committee voted to continue its policy of no more than two teams from the same conference in the 32-team tournament field. Also, teams from the same conference will be so scheduled that they will not be able to play each other before the national finals are reached.

Bruins win tennis title

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — UCLA has clinched the 1975 National Collegiate Athletic Association tennis title

And now freshman sensation Billy Martin leads the Bruins into the singles semifinals of the 91st NCAA when he meets unheralded Joao Soares of Pepperdine.

Fred De Jesus of Michigan will go against George Hardie of Southern Methodist University in the other semifinals match today.

Martin led the UCLA forces Thursday as the Bruins collected enough points to clinch the team championship.

Martin, playing his best tennis of the tournament, removed a big hurdle when he defeated Bill Matyastik of Trinity University 6-4, 6-4 in a quarterfinals match.

Thursday also saw No. 2 seed Hank Pfister of San Jose State drop out of the tournament after losing to Hardie.

The biggest upset of the day came in he doubles competition when Michigan's De Jesus and Victor Amaya were stunned, 64, 2-6, 7-5 by Gonzalo Gonzalez and Stewart Keller of Texas.

In today's doubles matches UCLA goes against Michigan and Miami of Florida meets Southern California.

Haden, McKay sign with Sun

ANAHEIM (AP) — The Southern California Sun of the World Football League will have a distinctly familiar backfield.

The Associated Press learned Thursday that the Sun has signed longtime teammates Pat Haden and J.K. McKay of Southern California to multiyear contracts, teaming them once again with Anthony Davis.

Haden was the quarterback, Davis the running back and McKay the wide receiver the past three years at Southern Cal, and Haden and McKay played together in high school.

Davis' signing was announced several weeks ago and the Sun called a news conference today to announce the signings of Haden and McKay.

The Los Angeles Rams made Haden, a Rhodes Scholar, a seventh round choice and McKay, son of USC Coach John McKay, was a 16th round pick by the NFL's Cleveland Browns.

Although Haden must be in England this fall as a Rhodes Scholar, the WFL starts its season next month and he will be able to play a litle over half the Sun's games.

Angels hoping for best

ANAHEIM (AP) — The California Angels opened an 11-game home stand tonight against the Texas Rangers hoping for good news about hurler Nolan Ryan.

The hard-throwing pitcher suffered a pulled groin muscle at Kansas City Wednesday night and the Angels hoped to know today when Ryan will be able to pitch again.

"It felt just like a rubber band had popped," Ryan said of the injury suffered in the third inning of a 13-0 loss to the Royals.

"I've had two of these before and each time I could feel the leg start to tighten up and I could make it less painful by doing some stretches," he said.

"This time it just popped and I knew it would get worse if I tried to pitch with it."

Tonight Bill Singer took the mound for the Angels in the first game of a five-game series with the Rangers. Gaylord Perry was to start for Texas.

The teams play a twi-night doubleheader Saturday, an afternoon game Sunday and the final game Monday night.

The Angels go into the series with a three-game losing streak.

THE HUMAN ERASER — Marvin Webster, called the 'Human Eraser' for his shot blocking ability signed with the ABA Denver Nuggets for an estimated $1.2-$1.5 million.

Pastore makes first team

Damien High's Frank Pastore and Nogales High's John Ekman, the Most Valuable Players in their leagues this year, have been named to the first team of the All-CIF 3-A baseball selections, the Citizens Saving Athletic Foundation announced today.

Pastore, the valley's High School Baseball Player of the Year, was the MVP in the San Antonio League after pitching Damien to the SAL title and to the semifinals of the 3-A playoffs.

Frank posted a season record of 14-1, his only loss being to Lynwood in the playoff semifinals contest, 5-4.

Pastore recently signed to play professional ball with the Cincinnati Reds of the National League after being picked up in the second round of the June free agent draft by the Reds.

He is currently competing in the Reds' Pioneer Rookie League in Billings, Mont.

Ekman, who batted .348 in leading Nogales to its second straight league championship, was named the MVP in the Montview League this year.

Ekman, an outfielder, has been selected to compete for the South in tonight's Pomona Valley High School All-Star Baseball Game at Chino High.

Two other valley players were placed on the 3-A teams.

Rowland High's Jim Ruhland was named the 3-A's second-team second baseman with a batting average of .447.

Damien High's late Vince Garcia, who died in an automobile accident during the season, was a third-team selection by the Citizens Savings Foundation's All-Southern California Board of Baseball.

Garcia had a pitching record of 8-1 and boasted an earned run average of 0.87. The senior right-hander was a first-team All-SAL choice, along with being co-MVP on the Damien team.

Vince's only loss during the year was a one-hitter against Nogales in pre-league competition.

Bishop Montgomery pitcher Bill Bordley was named the CIF 3-A Player of the Year after claiming a 16-1 record during the year. Only a junior on the 3-A's division championship team, Bordley recorded the win the title game against Lynwood, allowing only three hits while strike out nine in the 1-0 decision.

The 6-foot-2, 195-pound lefty struck out 123 batters prior to the playoffs and kept up the pace in the playoffs as he won all five games.

Pastore, who had all of Damien's decisions in the playoffs, was runnerup to Bordley in the voting for the Player of the Year.

Post 78 rallies for win

Claremont American Legion Post 78 rallied for five runs in the first three innings and coasted to a 9-2 victory over host San Dimas Blue Thorobred Thursday evening at Bonita High.

Claremont, now 12-9 for the season, received 14 walks in the game and also took advantage of five wild pitches and three passed balls by the San Dimas club, which is now 0-7 for the year.

Claremont put the game away in the third inning with a five-run outburst, aided by four walks and run-scoring doubles by Steve Larson and Rob Haerr.

Paul Sokolowski was perfect at the plate for Post 78, going two-for-two while scoring twice.

Claremont's next scheduled game is Saturday against La Verne Legion Post 330 at Bonita High. Game time for that one is 2 p.m.

Stardust Mel, Ancient Title top field in Gold Cup 'cap

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Stardust Mel and Anciet Title, two geldings in the running for horse-of-the-year honors, top the field Saturday in the 36th running of the Hollywood Gold Cup, a prestigious 1¼ miles with a $150,000 purse.

Trainer Charlie Whittingham saddles Stardust Mel, the Santa Anita Handicap winner, and the veteran conditioner has had the Gold Cup winner the past four years with Ack Ack, Quack, Kennedy Road and Tree of Knowledge.

In addition to Stardust Mel, Whittingham also will have El Tarta and La Zanzara in the eight-horse field. Stardust Mel and El Tarta will be coupled in the betting since both are owned by Marjorie Everett who also is a major stockholder in Hollywood Park, scene of the race.

Whittingham's best chance rests with the top-weighted Stardust Mel who carries 126 pounds with Jockey Howard Grant, substituting for the suspended Bill Shoemaker.

Stardust Mel, a 4-year-old son of Wallet Lifter already has earned $277,250 in purses this year, tops among the nation's handicap horses. He could collect another $90,000 in the Gold Cup.

Ancient Title, a 5-year-old, finished second in this race a year ago and has already won the $118,100 Californian at Hollywood Park. He'll carry 125 pounds with Laffit Pincay in the saddle.

Ancient Title was acclaimed California's Horse of the Year in 1974 when he won the Strub Stakes at Santa Anita, the race won this past meeting by Stardust Mel.

Ancient Title has collected a piece of the purse in 28 of his 29 starts.

In post position order, the field for the Gold Cup will have Barclay Joy, 114, El Tarta, 115, Dancing Papa, 114, Ga Hai, 114, Ancient Title, 125, La Zanzara, 113, Bing Band, 115, and Stardust Mel, 126.

The Irish-bred Barclay Joy gets in light again with his 114 after going off at 35-1 and winning the Hollywood Turf Invitational, a $125,000 race two weeks ago on the grass course.

This race will be on the dirt and Barclay Joy has run on the main track only twice—at Santa Anita where he won an allowance race and finished fourth in the San Marcos Handicap.

El Tarta has won 14 of 21 career outings including several races in his native Argentina.

However, Ancient Title holds far better credentials with career earnings of $623,470, including $132,100 this year. He should be the one giving Stardust Mel the true test.

AAU meet begins today

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — With the U.S.-USSR dual track meet still a huge question mark, American athletes will try to win places on a U.S. team this afternoon in the National AAU Track and Field Championships.

The prestigious meet with the Russians was left dangling Thursday after it had been canceled by AAU officials over a television contract technicality. Russian officials were reported still hoping to solve the problem and proceed with the meet scheduled for July 4-5 at Kiev.

However, the 357 athletes gathered at the University of Oregon were basically unconcerned with whether the meet would take place. Foremost is simply making the U.S. team, and it takes a first or second to do that.

And the guys who will undoubtedly have the inside track at making the team in the 100-meter and 200-meter dashs are Steve Williams, Ivory Crockett and Reggie Jones.

The sprints stack up as the explosive events, mainly because this Eurethane track is considered the fastest for dashmen in the world. And the above trio isn't without competition.

Williams, co-holder of the world 100-meter record of 9.9, is favored over Crockett, the first man to run 100 yards in 9.0, and Jones, the muscular youngster from Tennessee.

One prominent American, however, won't be around. Houston McTear, the Florida schoolboy, was not sent enough money by the AAU to pay expenses for himself and his coach, Will Willoughby, and will reluctantly remain at home.

Others given a good chance to win the events are Don Quarrie, Hasely Crawford and James Gilkes, but they cannot make the American team because they are not Americans.

Under a reciprocal agreement that permits Americans to compete in other countries' national championships, some foreigners are permitted in this meet, which was first held in 1876. Quarrie is from Jamaica; Crawford is from Trinidad; Gilkes is from Guiana.

The top two Americans in any events led by foreigners get the team berths.

The loss of McTear is the most talked-about event thus far.

The 18-year-old equalled Crockett's 9.0, ran 9.96 for 100 meters last week and is considered to have unlimited potential.

Willoughby said, "If I could have sent the kid myself...He still has to eat on the trip. The $375 check the AAU sent couldn't cover his plane fare, though maybe he could have taken a night coach, but I didn't check that.

"It's not just my decision that he can't go alone. People forget that he's just in high school.

"My principal—superintendent—we just don't feel that it would be feasible for him to go without a chaperone. You just don't do these things in high school. I can't send a high school kid 4,000 miles to Oregon by himself, especially when he has to change planes."

Reuss throws shutout

By Associated Press

Jerry Reuss nibbled at the plate with his pitches, giving the St. Louis Cardinals nothing fat to hit.

The starvation diet left the Redbirds with a bad taste in their mouths and just a bunch of eggs on the scoreboard Thursday night.

"I've been able to control my pitches and put the ball pretty much where I want to," the Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher said, explaining his 5-0 shutout over the Cardinals and other recent successes.

"I've just been consistent, and consistency is the most important ingredient in pitching."

Reuss' six-hitter, his second shutout over the Cardinals this season and his eighth-victory, is a bitter pill for St. Louis to swallow. Only a couple of nights ago, Cardinal pitcher Lynn McGlothen branded the Pirate staff as "mediocre."

But Jim Rooker answered that charge Wednesday night with a six-hitter and Reuss delivered another high, hard one at the Cardinals with his beauty Thursday night.

"It was Jerry's best outing in a complete game since he came here before the 1974 season," said Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh. "He had a good fastball and he had control. I can't remember of any other game when he didn't walk at least one batter."

Coupled with the New York Mets' 3-2 defeat by Montreal in 13 innings, the Pirates improved their lead in the National League East to 3½ games.

Elsewhere in the NL, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Diego Padres 4-1 and the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the Chicago Cubs 6-3 in 14 inings

While Reuss was doing his thing on the mound, Bill Robinson, Willie Stargell and Dave Parker blasted home runs for all the Pirate scoring. Robinson struck a solo homer in the first inning to give the Pirates a 1-0 lead. Then he singled in the fourth before Stargell unloaded one into the right field seats.

In the sixth, John Curtis had Stargell struck out, but the ball got away from catcher Ted Simmons and Willie was safe at first. One out later, Parker lined a Curtis fastball over the right field wall.

Expos 3, Mets 2

Gary Carter's infield single drove home the winning run in the 13th inning to lead Montreal's victory over New York. Pitcher Dale Murray began the Montreal rally with a walk on four pitches from Rick Baldwin and was sacrificed to second. After an intentional walk to Mike Jorgensen, Tony Scott singled to load the bases and set the stage for Carter's dramatic hit.

Phillies 6, Cubs 3

Johnny Oates and Ollie Brown hit run-scoring doubles in the 14th inning, keying a three-run outburst that carried Philadelphia past Chicago.

Sports briefs

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Tommy Reamon, the World Football League's leading runner in 1974, signed Thursday to play with the Jacksonville Express of the WFL this year.

Reamon said by telephone from his home in Newport News, Va., that he chose Jackonville over Pittsburgh of the National Football League and Toronto of the Canadian League "for the happiness and security of Tommy."

NEW YORK (AP) — Forward Lonnie Shelton of Oregon State University, the third player selected in the recent American Basketball Association draft, has been signed to a multi-year contract with the Memphis Sounds, Commissioner Dave DeBusschere announced Thursday.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals recalled pitcher John Denny from their Tulsa farm club in the American Association Thursday night and sent pitcher Ryan Kurosaki to Arkansas in the Texas League.

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Gentry, a six-year major league veteran, was released unconditionally Thursday by the New York Mets' Jackson, Miss., farm team in the Texas League, the Mets announced.

NOTTINGHAM, England — Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., joined Tom Okker, Phil Dent and Tony Roche in the semifnials of the $108,000 John Player Tennis Championship with a 7-5, 6-3 upset victory over top-seeded Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill.

EASTBOURNE, England — Billie Jean King advanced to the semifinals of a Wimbledon preliminary tournament with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Linky Boshoff of South Africa. Africa.

TORONTO — Bobby Baun, star defenseman for 17 seasons in the National Hockey League, signed a one-year contract to coach the Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association.

CLEVELAND (AP)— The Cleveland Indians said baseball pitcher Fritz Peterson cut his pitching hand in a tractor accident Thursday while working in his yard at home.

Sabres sign top choice

BUFFALO (AP) — The Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League announced Wednesday the signing of goalie Robert Sauve, their No. 1 pick in the recent amateur draft.

The Sabres said Sauve signed a multi-year contract just before midnight Tuesday, his 20th birthday.

Suave, 5 feet 8, 170 pounds, played for the Laval Nationals in the Quebec Major Junior A League last season.

Steve Braun suspended

NEW YORK (AP) — Outfielder Steve Braun of the Minnesota Twins has been suspended for three games and fined an undisclosed amount of money for pushing an umpire, it was announced Thursday by American League President Lee MacPhail.

The incident came Tuesday night during the seventh inning of the Twins first game of a doubleheader against the Oakland A's after Braun was called out on strikes by Anthony. He argued vehemently after the decision, then shoved the umpire and finally was ejected by Anthony.

The suspension began Thursday and will continue through Saturday's game.

Rockets sign Jim Blanks

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets have announced the signing of Jim Blanks, 6-foot-5 forward from GardnerWebb College in North Carolina.

Blanks, the Rockets' second round selection in the National Basketball Association college draft last month, signed a contract Thursday.

Makeshift A's extend margin

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Baseball's World Champion Oakland A's have come up with their own plumbers' unit to sabotage any title aspirations of challengers in the American League West.

"We've won four of five and put Minnesota back a ways," said Oakland Manager Al Dark. "Now we've got to prepare for Kansas City."

The makeshift A's capitalized on strong pitching by Sonny Siebert, Glenn Abbott and Paul Lindblad and some daring baserunning for a a 5-2 victory over Minnesota in 10 innings Thursday.

Oakland won the final four games of the five-game set, which left the Twins eight games behind.

"We've got to be thankful we could win this game resting some of our guys," said Dark, who rested Bert Campaneris, Gene Tenace and Billy Williams and used Reggie Jackson as the designated hitter. However, Ted Martinez, Ray Fosse and Angel Mangual filled in capably.

"They all needed a rest for one reason or another," said Dark. "Every series is a big one and we've got one coming up now with Kansas City."

In other American League games Thursday night, the New York Yankees bombed the Detroit Tigers 9-2 and the Texas Rangers whipped the Chicago White Sox 5-3.

Joe Rudi, who also belted his ninth home run of the year to cap Oakland's three-run 10th inning, singled in a first-inning run and Sal Bando drove in the other with a single.

Phil Garner and Washington scored on Hughes' wild pitch. Garner was on third base and Washington at first. Washington was running on the pitch and allowed to score when Borgmann threw wildly into the A's dugout trying to catch Garner.

Yankees 9, Tigers 2

Catfish Hunter retired the first 17 batters and finished with an eight-hitter while Roy White drove in five runs with a homer and a single to lead New York over Detroit.

Rangers 5, White Sox 3

Tom Grieve's two-run double sparked a five-run seventh inning that carried Texas over Chicago. Chicago left-hander Claude Osteen carried a 3-0 lead into the seventh, but quickly surrendered a single to Leo Cardenas and a walk to Jim Sundberg. Cesar Tovar then singled through the left side to score Cardenas with the Rangers' first run.

Jennings signs letter for Long Beach State

Marcus Jennings, Ontario High's All-CIF track and field long jumper, is one of three track athletes who recently signed a national letter of intent at Long Beach State.

Jennings won the Masters Meet long jumper championship this year with a leap of 24 feet, 5¾ inches before finishing second in the CIF State Meet at San Diego's Balboa Stadium.

He and Fontana's Paul Wilson, the State Meet champion, were recently named to the All-CIF track and field team as long jumpers.

The other two track athletes who signed letters at Long Beach were State junior college pole vault champion Jim Knaub of Lakewood and high school sprinter Ricky Jackson of Pasadena High.

Walnut conducts Dodgers' contest

The Walnut Recreation Department will conduct the "Play Ball With The Dodgers" Baseball Skills Contest July 11 at 9 a.m. at Suzanne Park.

The program is designed for boys 9 through 14 years of age who will compete in three age categories: 9-10, 11-12, and 13-14.

The skills contest will provide competition in throwing for distance and accuracy; hitting for distance; base running; and bunting for accuracy. Local and city playground contest will be held at Suzanne Park; regional contest July 19; county-wide contests July 26 and the Southern California championships Saturday, August 2 at Dodger Stadium.

Local winners will receive certificates, medals and Dodger tickets. The Southern California winners in each category will receive two box seats for the 1976 Dodger season and an engraved wristwatch.

Entrants must pre-register at either Evergreen, Castle Rock, Vejar, Collegewood Elementary Schools, Suzanne Park or the Recreation Office. Further information may be obtained by calling Guy Freeland at 595-1261, Ext. 241.

DFG schedules tour of Tule elk ranges

The California Department of Fish and Game will conduct a public tour of Owens Valley Tule elk ranges on Saturday, July 5.

Wildlife biologist Banky Curtis said chances for viewing the elk at this time should be excellent.

"This is the beginning of the rut, and the bulls are gathering cows in large groups," he said. "But don't hesitate to bring the children. The show isn't X-rated yet".

People planning to participate in the tour should bring binoculars, cameras, and wear footgear suitable for a short hike, Curtis said.

The tour will start at 7 a.m. at the Wildlife Viewpoint on the eastern side of Highway 395 approximately 15 miles north of Independence. A sign marks the turnoff.

"Just drive in and up the hill; there is plenty of room to park," Curtis said.

Three of six Tule elk herds of the Owens Valley are located in the vicinity of the viewpoint. These are the Goodale, Tinemaha, and Independence herds which make up about one-half of the estimated 375 elk in the valley.

Following the tour, DFG bilogists will present a slide show on the history and status of the tule elk in the Owens Valley where they were successfully introduced in 1933 and 1934 following the loss of their original range in the Central Valley to agriculture.

The slide show presentation on this, the smallest of American elk, is scheduled at 11 a.m. in the American Legion Hall, Main Street, Independence.

11 swimmers earn awards

Mt. Baldy Aquatics AAU team members competed in the inaugural Palm Springs Desert Classic A-B-C meet recently and had 11 swimmers come away with place honors.

Leading the locals with eight awards was 8-year-old Jennifer Weck. Miss Weck won going away in the 7-8 "A" group 50 meter backstroke with a clocking off 44.1. She also placed with thirds in the 50 and 100 free and 50 breast, finishing fifth in the 50 fly. Swimming 10 & Under "B", she garnered third in the 100 free and fourths in the 50 free and 100 breast.

Earl Welliver, 14, set the pace for the older swimmers with six awards for his efforts. Welliver recorded a 1:08.6 in the 100 fly and a 2:31.5 in the 200 fly for gold medals, took fourths in the 100 breast and 400 free, and sixths in the 200 back and free, making the "AA" standard in the free.

William "Ryce" Welliver, Earl's 10-year-old brother, kept the honors in the family as he splashed home first in the 100 breast (1:51.4), 100 back (1:36.1) and 50 back (43.8). He followed with thirds in the 50 and 100 fly and fifth in the 50 free.

Also returning with six awards was 11-year-old Stephen Mai, who won the blue ribbon with an "A" time in the 100 back (1:26.1), placed second in the 50 back and fly, third in the 50 breast and 200 free, and fourth in the 200 free.

12-year-old David Neault earned first places in the 100 fly (1:27.1) and 100 free (1:10.3), second in the 50 free and fourth in the 50 breast and back.

Derek Burns, 10, broke into "A" class with a win in the 100 free (1:19.4) and a second place finish in the 200 free. Burns continued with a drop of 5 seconds from his previous best to finish third in the 50 breast; he capped off his events with sixths in the 50 fly and back.

Jim Barbee, 17, clocked an "A" time as he finished first in the 200 breast and followed with sixths in the 100 fly and back.

Steven Weck, 7, came home with a blue ribbon as he broke into the "A" standard while finishing first in the 100 free (1:30.5). Weck also took third in the 78 "A" 50 back.

Suzie Williams, competing 11-12, out-touched her rivals in a close race to take the 50 fly in 42.5. Miss Williams also placed fifth in the 100 breast with a personal best in the event.

Trout planted in new waters

Beginning this week Southern Californians will have one more trout fishing stream in which to try their luck.

The Department of Fish and Game will begin stocking Bouquet Canyon Creek in northwestern Los Angeles County on an every-other-week basis. Stocking is ecpected to continue through the middle of August and possibly through the Labor Day holiday in early September.

Bouquet Canyon Creek is a small stream that receives most of its flow from the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power's Bouquet Reservoir.

During most months of the year the flow of Bouquet Canyon Creek would not support a fishery, but each year during the height of the vacation season additional water is released through the cooperation of the Department of Water and Power and the United Water Conservation District, with the concurrence of downstream property owners.

This additional water is the amount calculated to have accumulated in the reservoir due to precipitation and local runoff. The rights to this water are held by the United Water Conservation District, which services the lower Santa Clara River Valley. All other water in Bouquet Reservoir is delivered through the Los Angeles Aqueduct from the Owens Valley.

That portion of Bouquet Canyon Creek to be stocked by the DFG is from the Falls Campground downstream for a distance of two miles. This area is within the Angeles National Forest.

Bighorn preserve closed

To provide protection for the rare peninsular bighorn sheep during critical summer months when ewes and lambs concentrate at important water supplies, a portion of Coyote Canyon in Anza Borrego Desert State Park will be closed to vehicles beginning July 1.

The closure, announced by rangers at the park, will extend through Sept. 30.

Bonnar Blong, Department of Fish and Game wildlife biologist, says that during the hottest months of the year, when many desert water supplies in other areas dry up, female bighorn sheep and their young are dependent on the springs in Coyote Canyon.

The springs are located in the canyon bottom, in the same area that is used by vehicles travelling through the canyon. Studies conducted by park personnel show that vehicular traffic prevents the sheep from making normal use of the water available there.

The area to be closed lies within the state park and extends southward from the confluence of Horse, Tule and Nance Canyons for a distance of about 12 miles.

Fish kill investigation

Department of Fish and Game wardens and biologists are awaiting results of laboratory tests of water and mud samples in their continuing investigation of a fish kill on the lower Ventura River early this month.

The kill, which occurred June 4 in the area below the Oak View sanitation outfall and the mouth of the river, included several thousand sticklebacks and substantial numbers of sunfish, bluegill and chubs as well as a few trout. A small number of marine fish also were found dead in the lagoon at the mouth of the river, according to Warden Gayland Taylor who conducted the first investigation of the fish losses.

Hobie class cats race on 4th of July

Catamarans of the Hobie class will race the man-made waters of Silver Lakes resort Independence Day weekend in sailing activity highlighted by a formal trophy event July 5.

Hosted by Fleet 15, the three-day action will sandwich the official regatta between days of exhibitions and informal racing at the Victor Valley resort community.

Fleet Commodore Steve Elsner, of Oxnard, indicated the Hobie Cat Saturday event will begin at noon for at least three races in A, B and C classes, all competing on the private lake for the traditional custom-made trophies created by Fleet 15 officials.

Holiday acquatic activities will mark the initial invasion of the Hobies for formal racing at the McCulloch Properties, Inc. owned Silver Lakes Resort, although many of the competing skippers have tested the waters during invitational fun weekends.

First albacore catch indicates good season

The outlook for the 1975 albacore season took a decided upturn this week when the first catch of the year was reported by a private boat fishing off the Dumping Grounds, about 90 miles southwest of San Diego.

The Ro Ann III reported by radio on Saturday catching two albacore weighing between seven and eight pounds. Other boats were fishing in the area, and one, the Redonda, reported catching 50 albacore on Sunday.

Six other sport charter boats fishing south of the 60-Mile Bank reported landing 85 albacore which ran from 5 to 18 pounds.

Department of Fish and Game marine biologist Charlie Hooker says the catch reported by the Ro Ann III is "very early in the season, about two weeks early."

"Both the size of the fish and the early time in the season are good indications that we may be in for the best albacore season in years," Hooker said.

Past fishing records indicate fishermen should be able to look forward to good albacore catches this year in waters between Los Angeles and Geronimo Island, about 125 miles south of the Mexican Border, Hooker added.

Water temperatures are about five degrees below normal, the coldest reported in the past 10 years, and this condition supports predictions for a good albacore year.

However, Hooker noted, the colder water also indicates that fishing for species which favor warmer water, such as marlin and yellowtail, will not be as good as the last two or three years.

Big Sky claims fishing paradise

If you are a serious angler in search of the best possible trout fishing in America, take a tip from the experts and try Big Sky of Montana.

Big Sky, a truly unique year-around Rocky Mountain recreation resort, is an excellent headquarters for a western fishing vacation. If the family doesn't fish, they can play golf or tennis, go horseback riding, or visit Yellowstone National Park (50 miles south), while the angler tests the waters of the nearby famous Gallatin and Madison Rivers near Big Sky for those brown or rainbow trout.

Or, if the family is the more adventuresome type, they can pack up their belongings and hike from Big Sky into the Spanish Peaks Primitive Area for camping, sightseeing and great mountain lake fishing, especially at Thompson Lake. Horse pack trips can also be arranged.

Those accommodations at Big Sky run from $12 a night for a single at the Hostels, to $85 per night for a condominium which will sleep a family of eight. The new 204-room Huntley Lodge, with gourmet dining room, heated outdoor pool, Jacuzzi, saunas and color TV charges $30 for a double. There's a 170-pad, full facility Camper Village, too.

For more information and package plans, call (800) 548-4486 toll free. In Montana call (800) 332-4491. Or write Big Sky of Montana, P.O. Box 1, Big Sky, Montana 59716.

Twinkle, twinkle, little star, says the old rhyme. On a clear night the sky is full of stars. They often seem to twinkle and flicker.

The stars themselves don't twinkle. It is because we see them through the ocean of moving air that surrounds our earth.

The unsteady layers of air bend and scatter the starlight so that it seems to change in brightness, and the stars appear to twinkle.

Stars near the horizon "twinkle" more than those high in the sky. This is because the light of these stars must travel a longer path through a thicker layer of atmosphere and has more chance to be bent and scattered.

If we could see stars from the moon, where there is no air, we would see them shining with a clear and steady light.

People got the idea that stars have points because they twinkle. But stars do not have points. They are really big, round balls like our sun.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (C/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

TERI GARR: She didn't start out to be funny

Teri likes comedy work

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — To be funny and feminine at the same time is a trick that few ladies can master. You can name the ones who succeed at it without having to draw a second breath.

But here comes Teri Garr. She's blonde and beautiful and can be very funny. Naturally, everybody wants her but she's kept pretty busy these days.

She says she's not under contract to anyone, but they keep writing her into McCloud — she plays Sgt. Norton — and they keep writing her into Cher's show.

"I started on McCloud," she says, "with a few lines and the parts get bigger and bigger. With Cher, well, I was on Sonny and Cher for three years, playing everything, and I keep getting invited back on Cher."

Like most comediennes, Teri didn't start out to be a funny girl. She started out to be a dancer. Her real name is Terry Gonnoud (pronounced Ga-now') but she followed the lead of her father, a song-and-dance man in vaudeville who used the name Eddie Garr in his act.

He died when she was 11 but she remembers how he tried to talk her and her two brothers out of any show business ambition. It worked with the brothers — one is a doctor, the other an engineer. But it didn't work with Teri.

"My mother pushed me," she says. "I started dancing lessons when I was a kid and I was going to be the world's greatest ballerina."

Two things combined to make her change her ambition. One was that, no matter how she tried, she kept getting laughs.

"Even when I was doing ballet," she says, "I got laughs. I'd be doing something serious, being lifted, and I would accidentally stick my hand in my partner's mouth. I don't really understand it but I'm grateful for it now."

The other thing was that she was given her first line to speak — and liked it. That was in "West Side Story." She was in the chorus, as one of the Jets. They gave her a line and she found that was a good feeling.

So she began studying. And, to support herself, she did a little of everything. She was even a roller-skating Statue of Liberty in a show at Disneyland for a long time.

Her first big break came as a result of a curious coincidence. She went to a friend's wedding and met a man named Chris Beard. A few days later, on a Sunday, she and her mother went for a drive. With nothing else to do, they stopped at an Army and Navy store to buy jeans — and there was Chris Beard again.

Now there's no stopping her. And most of the nation's TV fans — particularly the men — are delighted.

'Warrior' back

"Saturday's Warrior," a contemporary musical, will be presented at the California Theater of Performing Arts, San Bernardino, at 8 o'clock tonight and at 2:30 and 8 p.m. Saturday.

The show was a sellout when it played at the theater last month. It was written by Doug Stewart with music by Lex de Azevedo.

Bonita combo at Bowl

A musical combo from Bonita High School will take part in the annual Battle of the Bands at the Hollywood Bowl at 8:30 tonight.

The group, directed by Robin Snyder, is made up of Karen Hoover, bass; Frank Hanson, guitar; Jeff Lawrence, trombone; Margaret Hurmence, piano, and Steve Lawrence, drums.

More than 1,500 young musicians were auditioned for the finals in the competition sponsored by the county Parks and Recreation Department. Some 250 teen-age musicians and singers will compete in five categories — small band, combo, school stage band, vocal soloist and vocal ensemble.

Gallery offers Hart comedy

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

With a sweeping bow to the current fad for nostalgia Gallery Theater in Ontario has dusted off Moss Hart's creaking comedy of bad manners, "You Can't Take It with You," and given it a colorful and occasionally hilarious production.

The play, seen in dress rehearsal Thursday night, opens at 8 tonight at the theater-in-the-round at C Street and Lemon Avenue, to play Fridays and Saturdays for several weekends.

All the parts are right for re-creating the Depression era — Karla Skrob's costumes, Jeanne Shipley's set, and the incidental music — "Pennies from Heaven," "Smoke Rings," "Dream a Little Dream of Me." Director Duane Thomas keeps the large cast scampering with the requisite controlled lunacy.

"You Can't Take It with You" is largely a couple of days in the life of one man's family, but all members are kooks, and the admixture is riotous, except for occasional moments when an aren't-we-crazy syndrome takes over. Some of the characters are rich and entertaining, others somewhat constrained. The average is good, though.

The old pro, the eye of the storm, is Joseph Dolan as Grandpa, a skillful, intelligent actor who charges his eccentric role with warmth, humor and imagination. If he seems to spry for his years, he is nonetheless dynamic, droll and worth watching all the time.

Similiarly too young but boisterously funny in a fright wig and Lower Volga accent is Douglas Dowd as Kolenkhov, the Russian ballet instructor. His is a raucous but subtle comedic performance.

Pat Breyman is broadly humorous as the slaphappy Penelope who began writing plays because a typewriter was delivered to her house by mistake, and Clark Marshall as her husband, is an engaging if slightly bewildered foil. John Gaglio gives his customary wryly comic performance as the pipe-smoking fireworks impresario. Robert W. Scott as the steadfast printer is similarly a good foil for his ding-a-ling wife, Virginia Shannon as Essie, an ebulient comedienne.

Wendy Radford's Alice and Bill Woolley's Tony are pleasant but unexciting young lovers. Dyann Patrick as Rheba is a cute trick, and Steve Breithaupt as Donald lends vitality to his comings and goings, though tending occasionally to ham things up.

Chipping in with smaller parts are Jack Bradshaw, Henderson; Leslie Ann Renaker, Gay Wellington; Dwight Larick and Gail Jones as Mr. and Mrs. Kirby, Chuck Reano, Steve Cursi and Greg Salvato as the feds, and Margaret Davidson as the regal Olga.

Honor dance group

The Valley Concert Dance Theater, Pomona-based ballet troupe directed by JoAnn Warner, has been honored with the rating of Performing Company by the National Association for Regional Ballet.

Evaluations of ballet companies from Alaska, Washington, Oregon and California were held last month at Sacramento by the association's executive board. The companies were rated on technical, artistic and choreographic proficiency. VCDT is only the third Southern California troupe to be rated Performing Company.

VCDT was also honored recently by a proclamation of the Pomona City Council lauding the group for improving the quality of cultural activities in the city. The proclamation was presented by Vice Mayor Charles W. Bader.

The three longest suspension bridges in the world are the Humber, 4,626 feet, Hull, England; Verrazano Narrows, 4,260 feet, lower New York Bay, and the Golden Gate Bridge, 4,200 feet, San Francisco Bay.

TAKE A LETTER — Alice Marchak, secretary to Marlon Brando, shown with the actor at his Los Angeles home, has joined Linda Hunter, secretary to Julie Andrews, in writing a book, "The Supersecs," recording some of their adventures with their employers. At right is Brando's German shepherd, Bebe.

Filming

Family Theater, producer of religious movies, has embarked upon its most ambitious project — a $4 million life of Christ to be filmed by Italian director Roberto Rossellini.

Father Patrick Peyton, founder of Family Theater, said he took the project directly to Rossellini, who will produce it with his own company. Filming of "The Messiah" is being done in Tunisia and Rome.

Bowl tryouts

The Redlands Bowl Association will hold auditions for "South Pacific" in the John Knox Auditorium of the Redlands Presbyterian Church at 7 p.m. next Friday and at 1 p.m. June 28.

The Rodgers & Hammerstein musical will be staged in the bowl Aug. 22 and 23. Katherine Talbert directs.

Turkey farmers grow poppies

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

AFYON, Turkey (AP) — Turkish farmers are growing opium poppies again on a larger scale than before a two-year ban imposed under pressure from the United States. But the government says it has safeguards to assure that the crop won't make it into the hands of the underworld.

Turkish officials say they are confident that their new restrictions on harvesting the poppies will bring illegal trafficking to a virtual halt and that the opium will go only to the pharmaceutical industry for the manufacture of codeine and morphine — vitally needed in medicine around the world.

In the hands of smugglers, opium becomes heroin, a dangerously addictive drug.

Before the ban two years ago, Turkey was regarded as a major source for international drug rings that supplied addicts in the United States and Western Europe. U.S. narcotics agents say a substantial amount — some put it at as much as half — of the Turkish supply ended up on the illegal market then.

Across central Anatolia, the poppies now are sprouting through the sandy soil and by harvest time, in July, the purple and white poppy flower will burst forth and the pods will fill up with raw opium.

The Turkish government has licensed 100,000 farmers in seven provinces to replant the opium poppy for sale to the state agricultural monopoly. They planted 50,000 acres, which is more than three times the acreage that produced 75 tons of raw opium in 1972. Winter damage is expected to reduce this year's production.

For the first time, however, the government has barred farmers from extracting raw opium under a harvesting system in use in other countries.

Afyon, which means opium in Turkish, is a major city in poppy country which spreads south and west across the barren Anatolian plain.

Anatolian peasants have been tilling poppy fields at least since Greco-Roman times and today poppy farming remains a peasant enterprise — a part of the local culture.

The new law has restricted poppy cultivation to a maximum of 1.25 acres per farmer, with the majority licensed for half-acre plots. To subsist, most poppy farmers also cultivate sugar beets, barley and other crops.

While the peasants don't use opium as a drug, they use the leaves of the poppy plant for salads, poppyseed oil for cooking and the bitter opium gum as a cure-all.

Still, the peasants made easy money in what villagers in nearby Anayurt described as a flourishing illegal traffic in raw opium — the first leg in the "-" — the first leg in the "Turkish Connection"

"The amount of illegal trade depended on the government price and how much the traffickers were willing to pay," said one peasant. "It was up to our consciences if we wanted to hold back opium from the government and sell to traffickers."

The temptation was great. The state monopoly paid the Turkish lira equivalent of $14 a kilogram — 2.2 pounds — for raw opium, while traffickers would pay $21 to $57 a kilogram, depending on quality and how badly they wanted it, the villagers said.

Experts say a kilogram of heroin could support 55 addicts for a year. The street price in the United States is estimated at $50,000 a kilogram wholesale.

The villagers said cheating would be difficult this harvest, however.

The government has barred farmers from using the centuries-old method of lancing the poppy for its raw opium content. Peasants used to split the hard, nutlike pod of the poppy flower, then 24 hours later scoop up the ooze, which is the raw opium sought by traffickers. The splitting process leaves a large gash in the pods, visible to controllers.

Now farmers must use what is called the poppy-straw method, which U.S. experts say could prevent most trafficking if properly enforced. Under this system, the crop is to be harvested in bulk after the pods dry during the 15-day period when the opium flows. The husks will then be shipped to refineries abroad for the manufacture of morphine and codeine for the pharmaceutical industry.

At harvest time, Turkish officials say, more than 600 inspectors from the Agriculture Ministry and Soil Products office will be in the fields to enforce the new regulations. In addition, police will inspect the fields from low-flying reconnaisance planes.

Turkish officials claim the new sytem is virtually foolproof.

"We will be able to control illegal trafficking," declared Agriculture Minister Korkut Ozal. "Illegal production will be next to nil, not 100 per cent but near it. Even the Communist system can't completely control the black market."

Others are less optimistic, given Turkey's record in being unable to control opium smuggling before.

Particularly troubling to narcotics investigators trying to stem the supply of drugs smuggled to America is that Turkey has gone back ito poppy production on a larger scale than before the ban. The government, in fact, had been phasing out opium production — permitted in 21 provinces in 1968 and down to four in 1972. Now poppies are being grown in seven provinces.
